HONEY W. NASHMAN CENTER FOR
CIVIC ENGAGEMENT AND PUBLIC SERVICE

“For last year’s words belong to last year’s language and next year’s words await another voice. And to make an end is to make a beginning.”
— T.S. Eliot

Friends

Here we are at the close of a very challenging year and semester. Hang in there, you're almost done!

Now is the time to rest, reflect, and remind ourselves that we are resilient!

As you reflect on the past year and talk with family and friends, remember to congratulate yourself and your loved ones on your resilience and your persistence.

Think about all you have managed to do this year -- classes are online; we spend hours every day in front of Zoom, Microsoft teams, Webex, Blackboard, trying to make the academic, emotional, intellectual, civic, and social connections. And yet here we are and in spite of it all, you have found ways to go beyond surviving it and have found some ways to thrive. Share those strategies for thriving with your friends. We can all use a little help. And be of help wherever you can.

As the days go by it is easy to forget how much you have accomplished and how much we have done together. Remember the good stuff.

It is okay to feel hopeful and to take a deep breath.

One thing that's making me happy now -- for so many reasons -- is Puppy for Hannukah and NPR interviewed Daveed Diggs and Jonathan Snipes of the trio Clipping about it here.

Wishing you loving and peaceful holidays and a healthy and enlightening new year.

Amy Cohen

NASHMAN CENTER PROGRAMS

MLK DAY OF SERVICE & LEADERSHIP

Join us for GW's annual Martin Luther King, Jr. Day of Service on Monday, January 18, 2021 in honor of the life and legacy of Dr. King. The day will begin at 1pm EST with a virtual opening program and keynote speaker. Participants can then choose to engage in a virtual service project or workshop.

Unable to join us but still want to support the community? In addition to virtual service projects and workshops we are proud to host a Winter Care Package Drive to support DCPS Connected Schools. Questions? Please email us at mlkdos@gwu.edu.
