Dear community:

Last week, our team came together to celebrate our annual Community Health Symposium on Wednesday, March 23, 2022, where they will present their work! This event is a significant milestone in our organization’s journey towards improving public health outcomes. The symposium is a platform for sharing cutting-edge research and fostering collaborations, essential in shaping the future of public health.

While our festivities looked quite different from our last in-person celebration in 2019 (masks, physical distancing, squirts of hand sanitizer at every turn!), it was nice to be together again. Talking in-person instead of conversing out of our little Zoom rectangles and slack channels just felt so much more… normal. While we should be vigilant about the Omicron variant, it is also important to remember a few things: we know how the virus spreads and we have masks, we now have tests, we have vaccines (and boosters!), and we have treatments. Let’s stay the course with personal responsibility and check in on the status of vaccines in your community here.

For current information regarding COVID-19, please visit: Health Alerts.Stanford.Edu.

Over the holiday season, we wish you a happy, healthy, and safe holiday season. We are fortunate to work closely with both the East and South Bay locations through various projects, and we thank you for your support. Your service to our community is immeasurable! We are here to receive your calls and to provide the treatment and care you need. We appreciate you using Santa Clara County Public Health and your local public health providers for more information.

For the latest newsletter on Wipe Out Melanoma-Calfornia click here. For the latest information on COVID-19 please visit this past year. Your service to our community is immeasurable! We continue our efforts addressing inequities in melanoma detection and care.

Roots Community Health Center-San Jose, is proud to announce that it has received approval for a grant from the National Institutes of Health (NIH) as part of the VOCES (Veterans Outreach and Community Engagement) program. The grant will fund a new program, the Roots Community Health Center-San Jose, Veterans Outreach and Community Engagement (VOCES) program, which will provide mental health and substance use disorder services to veterans in the community.

We are very excited to announce that we have received a grant from the National Institutes of Health (NIH) to fund a new program, the Roots Community Health Center-San Jose, Veterans Outreach and Community Engagement (VOCES) program. The program will provide mental health and substance use disorder services to veterans in the community.

The grant will fund a new program, the Roots Community Health Center-San Jose, Veterans Outreach and Community Engagement (VOCES) program, which will provide mental health and substance use disorder services to veterans in the community.

The VOCES program will be led by Dr. Wei-ting Chen, Associate Director of Community Partnerships, and will work closely with both the East and South Bay locations through various projects. The program will focus on providing mental health and substance use disorder services to veterans in the community.

The grant will fund a new program, the Roots Community Health Center-San Jose, Veterans Outreach and Community Engagement (VOCES) program, which will provide mental health and substance use disorder services to veterans in the community.

The program will provide mental health and substance use disorder services to veterans in the community.

We continue our efforts addressing inequities in melanoma detection and care.

We are very excited to announce that we have received a grant from the National Institutes of Health (NIH) to fund a new program, the Roots Community Health Center-San Jose, Veterans Outreach and Community Engagement (VOCES) program. The program will provide mental health and substance use disorder services to veterans in the community.

The grant will fund a new program, the Roots Community Health Center-San Jose, Veterans Outreach and Community Engagement (VOCES) program, which will provide mental health and substance use disorder services to veterans in the community.

The program will focus on providing mental health and substance use disorder services to veterans in the community.

We are very excited to announce that we have received a grant from the National Institutes of Health (NIH) to fund a new program, the Roots Community Health Center-San Jose, Veterans Outreach and Community Engagement (VOCES) program. The program will provide mental health and substance use disorder services to veterans in the community.

The grant will fund a new program, the Roots Community Health Center-San Jose, Veterans Outreach and Community Engagement (VOCES) program, which will provide mental health and substance use disorder services to veterans in the community.

The program will focus on providing mental health and substance use disorder services to veterans in the community.

Thank you for your support and for being a part of our mission to improve health outcomes and address health disparities. The team is excited to continue our work and to serve our community in the years to come.

HAPPY HOLIDAYS FROM OCE!