

Did "Moxie" show us how to end sexism and sexual violence in schools?

Not exactly, but we did find the new Netflix movie had some strengths, and gave us a lot to think about when it comes to the portrayal of movement building, social change, and people who perpetrate harm. We're back this spring with another analysis of pop culture and what it does - and doesn't - teach us about ending violence in our communities. Check it out, and share your thoughts! Then tell us...

What should we review next?

Let us know at communityimpact@violencefreeco.org or in the Youtube comments!

Donate

Disability and Abuse

What does privilege have to do with abuse and disability?

Learn more about this and some of the unique forms of abuse

Digital Abuse

You might think it's normal to control who your partner is friends with on social media, but

Healthy Relationships

What do healthy relationships and healthy communication look like to you?

that may impact disabled survivors at 1, 2, 3, and 4 in our social media series.

it could actually be a sign you're using abusive behaviors.

Learn more about the signs of digital abuse at 1, 2, 3, and 4 in our social media series.

Learn some of our ideas and share some of your own at 1, 2, 3, and 4 in our social media series.

Countering Domestic Violence with Tradition

"If we change our beliefs, we get different results - and it's not really changing our beliefs, it's re-understanding our (traditional) beliefs." -Mike Duncan

Learn about Native Dads Network and how other tribal communities are addressing domestic violence and harmful beliefs about masculinity by using their own traditions and history as a guide.

Relationship violence is not ok. It is ok to ask for help.
Stand Up Colorado is a project of Violence Free Colorado.

Share this email:

Manage your preferences | Opt out using TrueRemove®

Got this as a forward? Sign up to receive our future emails.

View this email online.

PO Box 40328 1330 Fox Street, Second Floor
Denver, CO | 80204 United States

This email was sent to .

To continue receiving our emails, add us to your address book.

emma®

Subscribe to our email list.