Contents of this Month's Update

New National Security Scholarships

CINA's 2021 Annual RFP New Open for Submissions

CINA Recruits Deanna Austin

DISTINGUISHED SPEAKER SERIES: Spring 2021 Spawning Events

CINA Annual RFP New Open for Submissions

The U.S. Department of Homeland Security (DHS) recently announced the first cohort of the 2021 CINA 2021 Annual Research and Training Laboratory (RFP) Call. CINA, Mason’s Forensic Science Program, is the first institution that also offers a major in forensic anthropology and provides a holistic education in the field of forensic science and related sciences for years to come. The program is designed to prepare students for careers in the field of forensic science, including roles in law enforcement, government agencies, and private sector organizations.

CINA's 2021 Annual RFP invites proposals that advance the mission of the Center for Information Network Analysis (CINA) located in the School of Policy and Government at George Mason University. The RFP will support research and training activities that align with the four pillars of CINA's mission.

The CINA mission is supported by three core activities: help DHS with current problems, develop and prepare for the future, and train the next generation of national security professionals and leaders. CINA helps solve current problems by providing funding to researchers and practitioners who are developing solutions to specific challenges faced by the Department of Homeland Security (DHS). CINA also helps develop and prepare for the future by identifying and addressing the emerging challenges represented by the four research themes of the CINA Annual Research and Training Program: Innovation and Cyber Security, Information Operations, Forensics, and Criminal Investigative Processes.

CINA's 2021 Annual RFP invites proposals that address main challenges represented by the four research themes of the CINA Annual Research and Training Program: Information Operations, Forensics, and Criminal Investigative Processes. White paper proposals that address main challenges represented by the four research themes of the CINA Annual Research and Training Program: Information Operations, Forensics, and Criminal Investigative Processes. White paper proposals that address main challenges represented by the four research themes of the CINA Annual Research and Training Program: Information Operations, Forensics, and Criminal Investigative Processes.

CINA's 2021 Annual RFP invites proposals that address main challenges represented by the four research themes of the CINA Annual Research and Training Program: Information Operations, Forensics, and Criminal Investigative Processes. White paper proposals that address main challenges represented by the four research themes of the CINA Annual Research and Training Program: Information Operations, Forensics, and Criminal Investigative Processes.