CINA's 2021 Annual RFP: New Open for Submissions

The Center for Information Networking and Analysis (CINA) recently opened its 2021 Annual Research Fellows Program (RFP) to accept proposals that advance the knowledge of cybercrime, terrorism, and criminal networks, with an emphasis on the ability to prevent and disrupt the threat posed by these networks. This year, CINA seeks proposals that address the following topics:

1. Cybersecurity: Proposals should focus on the development and implementation of innovative cybersecurity solutions to protect against cyber threats.
2. Cybercrime: Proposals should focus on the development and implementation of innovative solutions to prevent and disrupt cybercrime.
3. Criminal Networks: Proposals should focus on the development and implementation of innovative solutions to prevent and disrupt criminal networks.

Submissions will be accepted through January 29, 2021. For more information, please visit CINA's website.
