

Dear Colleague,

Wow, I honestly don't know how it's already December and almost the end of 2022! As you can likely imagine, this prairie girl is gearing up for the Canadian winter. But the colder weather hasn't slowed down the Emerging Destinations team.

Ana and Jane attended USTOA in Austin last week, and Ana is still in Texas doing sales calls. Meanwhile, I'm getting our message out in Denver.

With the holiday season quickly approaching, don't miss our December 13th webinar on The Legends & Sagas of Christmas in Iceland hosted by Arndis, an expedition leader and opera singer with Iceland ProCruises.

Have a safe and Merry Christmas, Happy Hanukkah and a Happy New Year!

Warm regards,

The Emerging Destinations team
Jenna, Jane, & Ana

The 13 Yule Lads and Other Icelandic Christmas Customs

Originating in Icelandic folklore, the Yule Lads or Jólásveinar are like trolls that live in the mountains and come to town one by one in December. Each one has a very specific character trait and names that explain their special behavior. Read More

An Autumnal Fairytale Escape to Monemvasia

On the southeastern coast of the Peloponnese, lies one of the most mesmerizing medieval castle towns of Greece, Monemvasia. Once a peninsula in the distant past, according to ancient Greek traveler Pausanias' "Guide to Greece", today, it is a small island that's calling us to discover its hidden secrets and beauties.
