What are we learning from the election results?

By Dean Fernando R. Miralles-Wilhelm

(1) It is a much closer race than any side expected or wanted. We are a deeply polarized country; some say that is not a good thing.

(2) We all are taking a dose of patience and waiting for all votes to be counted. I know this is a lot to ask; you voted for)

(3) The USA is a union of states. Each state has their own rules and they are being followed and it creates anxiety. Yet, it is our democracy at work.

(4) Let me say this again: this is a very close race. This means we all have friends, family, neighbors, (co-workers, who voted differently than we did. We all need to do our best to respect that difference, be tolerant and constructive, build on it to become more agreeable going forward.

A few reflections on the morning after Election Day…and the path forward.

In This Issue

MASON SCIENCE COMMUNITY

Online lecture at National Academy of Sciences

RESEARCH & DISCOVERY

Leading the fight against Lyme disease

IN THE NEWS

The Telegraph (UK) highlights video presentations from colleagues,

Research & Discovery

Happening at Mason

In the News

Events