What are we learning from the election result?

We begin this week's edition of #FacultyFriday highlighting video presentations from colleagues, focusing on breast cancer therapies and biomarker detection. Mason's and the College's social media feeds (left) feature clips from last week's CAPMM Breast Cancer Research #FacultyFriday highlights.

A few reflections on the morning after Election Day… and the path forward.

(1) It is a much closer race than any side expected or wanted. We are a deeply polarized country; some say that is not a good thing.

(2) We all are taking a dose of patience and waiting for all votes to be counted. I know this is a lot to ask; it is our democracy at work.

(3) It creates anxiety. Yet, it is our democracy at work.

(4) We all need to do our best to respect that difference, be tolerant and constructive, build on it to become more agreeable going forward.

By Dean Fernando R. Miralles-Wilhelm

What are we learning from the election result?

By Barry Klinger

Monique Van Hoek

In this Issue

In the News

Research & Discovery

Events

Mason Science Community

Online speaker at National Academy of Sciences

Leaders in the fight against Lyme disease

Sponsored by the Presidential Awards for Faculty Excellence

Nominations open for Presidential Awards for Faculty Excellence

Stay Connected

More on their research

More information

Sign up to receive our future emails.

To continue receiving our emails, add us to your address book.

This email was sent to .

4400 University Drive

View this email

Got this as a forward?

Manage

Share this email:

© 2020 George Mason University

Subscribe to our email list.