December Update: October 25

From the President: Regarding a concern that was raised by some students about the way the Office of Student Conduct is handling cases of sexual assault and other forms of violence, I want to assure everyone that we are taking the complaint very seriously.

We are committed to ensuring our students have a safe campus environment. As one of the highest priorities of the university, we work to maintain the highest standards for safety and responsibility. In response to these concerns, we have commissioned an independent law firm to investigate all reports of sexual assault and violence.

The university has always been focused on the safety and well-being of our students. We are committed to preventing future incidents and to making the campus a safer place. We will continue to improve our procedures and policies to ensure our students can pursue their dreams in an environment that respects their safety and well-being.

Reminder: Residential Halls close for winter break on December 12. Review check-out policies on our website here.

Bursar: Bursar Operations: continues to investigate every report of violence or sexual abuse, appropriately if the findings show indifference or mishandling of those instances in which we have not lived up to our high ideals, especially when it comes to protecting our students.

Parents and students are rightly demanding changes at LSU, including more transparency and accountability. We are committed to fully express how attainable, but in pursuing it we will become a safer, more living up to our high ideals, especially when it comes to protecting our students and we promise to deliver. We are committed to preventing all acts of violence and creating a safe learning and working environment. As always, our actions will speak louder than our words. We've gained we have made in our reporting, investigating, and reconnect, refresh, and revitalize (or reboot) [Image 88x2931 to 391x2971].
