Nominations are now open for the Director of MicroBiome Analysis Center. Join us for a lecture on "The Selfish Microbiome and Human Cognition" from November 18, 2021, at 6:30 p.m. at Galileo's Science Cafe at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. Join us for a Smithsonian Associates Lecture with Sara Seager, a professor of physics and planetary science at Stanford University, on November 17, 2021, from 6:45 to 8:45 p.m. Unique and memorable, the Hunger Banquet helps raise awareness, as organizers and participants alike engage in a thought-provoking experience to consider the global food system. The event will be held on November 17, 2021, from 5 to 7 p.m.

According to Kinter, countries will need “increased ambition going forward.” According to Kinter, countries will need “increased ambition going forward.”

In this Issue

Message from the Dean

IN THE NEWS

In the News

Events

Happening at Mason

For a list of Mason's 2021 LSP student research by Thursday, December 2 from 1 to 2:30 p.m.

Mason's Driving Research Effort: The VIII annual Research Day showcases the latest research from across the state ready to train and support entrepreneurs who seek to turn their innovative ideas into reality.

Please register before the event.

Attend the Title IX Coordinator Candidate Open Forum

Also described new initiatives.

According to Kinter, countries will need “increased ambition going forward.” According to Kinter, countries will need “increased ambition going forward.”

Last week, two very important conversations took place on our campus which set a starting point and foundation for future dialogue and action. Both occurred on Thursday, November 4.