Nominations are now open December 6, 2021 | 2 to 3:30 p.m.

Save the Date: Celebration of Success
November 18, 2021 | 6:30 p.m.

Galileo’s Science Cafe
the Massachusetts Institute of Technology.
Join us for a Smithsonian Associates Lecture with Sara Seager, a professor of physics and planetary science at
November 17, 2021 | 6:45 to 8:45 p.m.

Experience first-hand how our decisions affect others in the world.
Unique and memorable, the Hunger Banquet helps raise awareness, as organizers and participants alike
November 17, 2021 | 5 to 7 p.m.

Mason Hunger Banquet storytelling.
Mason students, faculty, staff, and alumni are invited for powerful well-being conversations on racial Racial Healing Circles Mason community is invited to the Attend the Title IX Coordinator Candidate Open Forum
Wednesday, November 10, 2021

Mikell Paige, received $498,998 from the Food and Drug Administration for the Study: “Manufacturing and Characterization of Potent mRNA Lipid Nanoparticle Vaccines at Multiple Scales.” Professor, Bioengineering; Michael Buschmann, Department Chair and Professor,
FDA funds Mason mRNA LNP vaccine

Find out more about their study Thursday, December 2 from 1 to 2:30 p.m.

Disciplines and fields are welcome. The next event on “Navigating Politics in Academia” will take place
Faculty Affairs and Research Development Interactive Workshop Series
Friday, November 12 in 1201 Merten Hall or by Zoom. The candidate will make a 30-minute
The Mason community is invited to the

According to Kinter, countries will need “increased ambition going for his perspective on climate change and our planet’s future.
In preparation for a report on the U.N. summit, Mason climate expert shares warming

Wednesday (11/17) in Exploratory Hall, second floor.

Dr. Washington outlined his Access to Excellence vision including the Mason Virginia Promise: a new initiative. Dr. Washington also reviewed the campus transformation ahead, detailing changes to the Fairfax I refer to us as being in the ‘science success business.’

Our academic and research pathways along with Mason’s 26 small business development centers across the state ready to train and support entrepreneurs who seek to turn their innovative ideas into The workforce development department is the gateway to help Mason
Business and Economics

First, we visited with Mason’s president, Dr. Gregory Washington to review the University’s and our foundation for future dialogue and action. Both occurred on Thursday, November 4.

Taking our collective scientific success from Good to Great Wisdom, and experience—what our Mason scientists need to be successful President Washington also referred to innovation as “a critical component of our
and our broader Mason community and SciTech campuses that will affect our teaching and research environments—the strategy: future

and SciTech campuses that will affect our teaching and research environments—the strategy: future

our collective scientific success from Good to Great Wisdom, and experience—what our Mason scientists need to be successful President Washington also referred to innovation as “a critical component of our
and our broader Mason community
and SciTech campuses that will affect our teaching and research environments—the strategy: future

We began the day with an overview of Mason’s Access to Excellence efforts across the state and Bringing Mason’s strengths to bear in support of the Virginia economy and workforce development
With #GISDay2021 around the corner, we highlight
#FacultyFriday highlights Geography

With #GISDay2021 around the corner, we highlight
#FacultyFriday highlights Geography

Registration required to receive our future emails.
Sign up to our email list.