A Message from Dean Genetti

To our Graduate Students,

We hope this message finds you well and continuing to confront the novel and sudden challenges that have been placed in your path due to COVID-19. As the University of California, Santa Barbara (UCSB) takes significant steps to operate during the COVID-19 pandemic, our Graduate Division continues to work to support students, faculty, and staff.

We are continuing to receive questions from students about the current status of this unprecedented crisis. At this time, we are following guidance from the University and other local and state agencies. We are following the University's current recommendation to work remotely and to find alternative solutions that are tailored to our students' needs. However, there is currently no set end date for this crisis. We must all continue to be vigilant and support each other during this time.

We have created a set of FAQs that resides on the GradPost and that we are constantly updating. Our staff has been meeting with graduate students virtually and in person to provide support and assistance. Additionally, we have created a set of resources that can be found on the GradPost.

We have also created a set of resources that can be found on the GradPost. These resources include information about seeking financial aid, academic support, and career development. We encourage all graduate students to visit the GradPost to access these resources.

We appreciate all of your support as we work hard to ensure that our graduate students continue to receive the same great world class education that you have always enjoyed.
