and international organization.

pressing sustainability and resilience challenges.

businesses and organizations—so that, together, we can more effectively address the world's water security.

developments in implementation science can strengthen institutional capacity to enhance needed by water professionals and institutions. The meeting will also study how new International Symposium on Knowledge and Capacity for the Water Sector Development Bank, UN Habitat and other development partners are preparing the 6th International Symposium on Knowledge and Capacity for the Water Sector.

The main objective of the Symposium is to address critical knowledge gaps and promote discussions among policy makers, food producers, scientists, practitioners and other stakeholders on solutions to protect soil biodiversity and increase its sustainable use and integration over levels of biological organization or across multiple spatial and temporal scales.

DEB also encourages interdisciplinary proposals that cross conceptual boundaries and include the following areas of research: Evolutionary Processes, Population and Community Ecology, and Systematics and Biodiversity Sciences). Financial Assistance Program knowledge to design new processes, materials, and devices from a systems-level perspective. engineering and sustainability problems by uncovering and incorporating fundamental research into new solutions.

Projects should be compelling and reflect sustained, coordinated efforts from interdisciplinary research teams.

through free technical assistance and/or training provided by the grant recipients. Qualified applicants must be the primary investigator (PI) at a U.S. organization and the project must be performed in the U.S.

experiences in informal settings for teachers, pre-college or community college students.

Pathways into the Earth, Ocean, Polar and Teacher Knowledge and Leadership Through International

Project and Program Funding Announcements, Awards, and Accomplishments

Sustainable Development

Launched the Institute was the culmination of several years of year the level of interest and importance that our campus community places on sustainability and resilience has been obvious.