THIS MONTH IN JAPAN

如月

kisaragi

如月 (Kisaragi). February. Named after the winter cold and people wearing extra clothes. It was also called 衣更着 (Kisaragi), literally meaning “wear more clothes!”

There is a lot of snow in the northern part of Japan so I suggest you wear enough warm clothing if you are going there in Kisaragi.

There are a few significant days in February for Japan. February 3 is Setsubun, the last day of winter according to the Japanese lunar calendar. Popular amongst children, Sestubun is usually celebrated with children throwing roasted soybeans at a family member dressed as an Oni (demon) while chanting "Oni wa soto; fuku wa uchi." (Demons get out; good luck come in.)

National Foundation Day is February 11. This is the date that Jimmu, the first emperor of Japan, was enthroned as documented in the Nihon Shoki (Chronicles of Japan). February 23 is His Majesty the Emperor's birthday, a national holiday in Japan.

NOTE FROM THE EDITOR

Dear Subscribers,

February is an eventful month for many. With Valentine's Day events flooding our newsfeeds, it can be difficult to choose a plan for the special day. If you're looking for event ideas to share with your valentine, be sure to check out this month's list of Japan-related events. Perfect way to spend time with loved ones, friends, or solo.

See you in March!
