Student News

Vistas from a Semester in Argentina

Jori Gibbons-Egolf (ITS, SPN, ORG '27) is currently spending the semester studying in Argentina. She sends the following photos from an event, representing the U.S. at a study abroad fair, and with other international students attending the university (Jori is pictured wearing the remains of a piñata as a hat, from the neighboring Mexican delegation's table).

In the ITS Classroom

Students in Kate Dannies' ITS 201 Introduction to International Studies have been learning about the historical development of academic disciplines and how politics, economy, and society have shaped production of knowledge in the modern era. They watched the film Rashomon to analyze the role of bias, perspective, and motivation in historical narratives and to critically interrogate the concept of objectivity.

In her ITS 202 Problem Solving in International Studies class, students are working on a semester-long case study about the Iran war and we have so far covered Iran's modern history and have been learning anthropology, with the class reading a full-length ethnography The Women of Deh Koh.

Meanwhile, last week in Yeliz Cavuz's ITS 201 Intro to International Studies, students visited Special Collections at King Library. During the sessions, students worked with historical primary sources and learned how archival materials can help us explore global issues in International Studies.

Model Arab League Announces New Exec

The MAL team poses at NUMAL after awards ceremony

Model Arab League announces its new executive team for the academic year, listed below. This year the team will represent Saudi Arabia at Ohio Valley Model Arab League conference in February in Bloomington, IN and at the National University Model Arab League in April in Washington, D.C. The team is growing and so the exec team has added a recruitment and research position. The team will organize a mock conference with the UC team and a visit to the special collections. Model Arab League is advised by Shawn Vanness.

Student Opportunities

Career Academy Spring Break Europe Trip

Career Academy 2027 is a career exploration opportunity hosted by Center for Career Exploration and Success. This spring break they will be taking 20 students to Europe to spend time in Luxembourg, Germany, and France for the week. While overseas, the group will be visiting employer partners, meeting with Miami University alumni, participating in panel discussions and networking events, and looking at providing a comprehensive experience for any students interested in pursuing a global career. This is a unique experience that CCES offers that is designed to be immersive in both the industry and culture of these locations.

Most importantly, CCES will cover the vast majority of the costs - students will only be required to pay a $100 fee. Students with financial need will have access to grant resources to cover this cost. CCES covers the remainder of all costs associated with the trip.

This is the first round of applications. There will be a second round with essay questions, but the essays have a length limit. It is purely about the content of the answers, and not the length.

Scott Participates in Gala Commemorating Stonewall

As an outgrowth of his participation in a Scholars Roundtable of LGBTQIA+ history in April, Damon Scott celebrated the 10th Anniversary of the Stonewall National Monument at a gala event in NYC at the invitation of the National Parks Conservation Association (NPCA). He had the opportunity reconnect with historic preservationists, archivists, community leaders, and academics exploring ways to preserve and interpret additional LGBTQIA+ sites of historical significance nationwide.

Also, under the auspices of the Miami Humanities Center's Digital Research Fellowship, he mentored an undergraduate student on a historical GIS project, culminating in the creation of virtual and physical 3-D model of the San Francisco waterfront in 1938.

Godeanu-Kenworthy Article on Hollywood's Impact on DIY Repairs

NPR Story

Oana Godeanu-Kenworthy published an article in The Conversation this May, titled "Today's bans on DIY repairs of everything from cell phones to tractors grew out of Hollywood's fear of videotaping." In it, she tracks the history of planned obsolescence through Hollywood's concern of copyright piracy.

Fun fact: This article Fun fact for our students: it had the highest reach of all Miami's publications since MU started collaborating with the Conversation, at 737,721 total reads!

Oana was also interviewed by NPR affiliate WYSO in June for a piece on the topic, called "Video killed the repairman."
