Dear Colleague,

Happy New Year! The entire Emerging Destinations team hopes you had a terrific holiday with your loved ones!

As you're reading this month's newsletter, Jane is spending some time in Guyana, where she is experiencing firsthand what it's like traveling in South America during the COVID-19 era.

If you have clients looking to disappear in incredible nature for a few days, Guyana isn't the only option. Costa Rica is another great destination to explore. Both countries are currently open for tourism and offer a wide range of activities and isolated areas to discover.

Please take a look below at the latest news from our clients in the Americas and don't miss our upcoming February edition, as we will be announcing dates of our upcoming virtual events.

Enjoy our blogs and feel free to reach out with any questions.

Four Ways to Trek the Legendary "W" Trail

Anyone into South American nature or hiking already knows the legendary "W" is one of a handful of treks that you must do at least once in your life.

Las Torres Reserve offers four different ways to undertake the trek depending on what type of experience and accommodation you're looking for.

"Mash" — Guyana's Ultimate Bash

On the 23rd of February 1970, Guyana became an independent nation. Every year, to commemorate this historic moment, Guyanese across the nation celebrate Mashramani.

This indigenous word means "celebration after hard work" — which in this case reflects the hard work that went into creating the republic and all the hard work that Guyanese undertake in their daily lives.

Costa Rica's New Golden Egg: The South Caribbean Coast

The South Caribbean Coast is one of Costa Rica's hidden gems, a place the travel industry has not yet discovered. For those relish under-the-radar destinations — and might want to make it their next vacation — Terranova offers a guide to the region.

2021 Wish List for Sustainability in the Amazon Rainforest Peru

The past year has been hard for everyone. But now that 2020 is in the rear-view mirror, Jungle Experiences looks to the future with renewed optimism.

Their biggest goal for 2021 is to continue taking good care of the Amazon environment with the support of passengers who appreciate the experience of traveling to a place that can truly be called the “lungs of our planet” as well as the support from the rest of our committed contributors.

How Amazonians saved the “Terminator” of the fish world.

CNN recently ran a story about how Indigenous communities in the Amazon Basin are helping save the arapaima, a massive predator fish that also makes pretty tasty eating.
