Funded by the U.S. Department of State, the Foreign Affairs IT Fellowship provides undergraduate and graduate students with up to $75,000 in academic development and mentorship. Fellows also get two summer internships (one in the U.S. Department of State, the Foreign Affairs Information Technology (FAIT) program, and one at an embassy or consulate abroad), professional development, and a two-year master's degree. Fellows also get two summer internships. FEA is currently accepting applications from students intending to study abroad during Summer 2022, Fall 2022, and Academic Year 2022-2023.

Fund for Education Abroad (FEA) invests in deserving U.S. undergraduates who intend to study abroad. Selected students receive up to $5,000 towards study abroad expenses including travel costs. FEA provides educational experiences designed to develop entrepreneurial mindset. Set up a virtual appointment with an admission director to learn more.
