CASA Volunteer Spotlight

"Being a CASA is a bit like being a parent of an adult child. You are always thinking of them even though neither lives with you. Advocacy is an always pursuit where your eyes and ears are continually watching for opportunities to benefit your "kids."

My first case is still my favorite, and he turned 7 recently. Walking the path toward adoption with the foster parents of this newborn tested my resolve and determination, but seeing him thriving makes all the work worth it. "
