The threat landscape facing our nation and world is complex, varied, and dynamic. We are expected to be facing in the near future. This rolling RFP provides an opportunity for COE researchers to connect and network with DHS components, federal, and international organizations, and to discuss emerging threats and challenges.

CINA continues to welcome paper submissions for the virtual event. The virtual Summit will take place on June 22-24, 2021, and will feature plenary sessions, panel discussions, and the COE exhibit hall. There will also be opportunities for virtual networking and one-on-one meetings.

I invite you to attend and participate in the virtual Summit. The event will provide a forum for COE researchers to share their work and to learn about the latest developments in homeland security.

There are related and complementary skills and expertise at the different centers, and we can't spend all of our time looking over the horizon and spending all of our resources on what we know we are going to face. We also need to think about how we can work with our partners, both public and private, to address risks not yet realized. So how do we tackle this daunting spikey ball of challenges?

We need to address risks not yet realized. Striking this balance requires thoughtful investigations: from transaction to seizure. We need to think about how we can work with our partners, both public and private, to address risks not yet realized. So how do we tackle this daunting spikey ball of challenges?

We need to think about how we can work with our partners, both public and private, to address risks not yet realized. So how do we tackle this daunting spikey ball of challenges?

We need to think about how we can work with our partners, both public and private, to address risks not yet realized. So how do we tackle this daunting spikey ball of challenges?

We need to think about how we can work with our partners, both public and private, to address risks not yet realized. So how do we tackle this daunting spikey ball of challenges?

We need to think about how we can work with our partners, both public and private, to address risks not yet realized. So how do we tackle this daunting spikey ball of challenges?

We need to think about how we can work with our partners, both public and private, to address risks not yet realized. So how do we tackle this daunting spikey ball of challenges?