

Have your course CBL designated!

Have your course CBL designated! If you are reading this, you could already be teaching a course that meets the basic criteria for official Community-Based Learning or CBL designation. Courses that incorporate community engagement into their work (in-person or virtual) may be formally designated as Community-Based Learning \(CBL\) courses through the University Curriculum Committee (UCC). Community-Based Learning adds value to your student's education and can instantly put them on the road to building their important professional networks. Community partners may include nonprofit organizations, schools, faith-based organizations, businesses, and industry.

Questions regarding CBL designation may be directed to the Director of Civic Learning and Community Engagement, Travus Burton (burtotra@gvsu.edu).

Roger That! Conference

Roger That! 2024 is focusing on Life in Space! Wait, does that mean living things on other celestial bodies, missions to find microbes, or considerations about where else in our solar system could life be present? Or are we talking about life in space, like what is it like to be a human in space? The answer is yes! It will take a look at "life" very broadly, including microbes, plants, animals, extraterrestrial life and homo sapiens, the only life form (that we know of!) that has intentionally left the Earth to explore what lies beyond.

Roger That VIII will start on Friday, February 16th with a variety of online speakers then transition to in-person events later in the day. There will be events at the Grand Rapids Public Museum on Saturday, February 17th.

Engaged Scholars Initiative

Campus Compact in partnership with the University of Nebraska at Omaha, is now accepting applications for the 2024-2025 cohort of the Engaged Scholars Initiative (ESI).

This is an opportunity to strengthen your community-engaged scholarship and develop your leadership skills in civic and community engagement by joining the 2024-2025 cohort. Those selected will form a closely connected network of diverse early-career scholars and participate in yearlong programming grounded in community building, scholarship, field leadership, and individualized support.

The cost to participate is $1,000 per person. Limited scholarships are available.

Applications are due Friday, April 19.

Engagement Scholarship Consortium: Call for Proposals

The Engagement Scholarship Consortium seeks proposals for our annual conference on October 9-10, 2024, in Portland, Oregon.

The 2024 theme will be “Pathways to Prosperity: Building Sustainable Futures through Community Engagement.”

The 2024 ESC Conference will be a place for engaging conversations about the many ways that we work collaboratively to define and build social and economic prosperity. We will come together to share the outcomes and impact of our work, explore new ideas and approaches to building pathways for change, and co-create solutions to society's most pressing problems. Presentation proposals will be considered on any topic clearly connected to the advancement of community engagement.

Proposals are due April 1, 2024.
