Daniel Malagon is a graduate student in the Department of Biological Sciences. He has been a successful undergraduate science teaching, particularly in their sincere interest in and concern for the students’ learning. As part of the program, teams received mentorship and support from working faculty advisers. As part of the program, teams received mentorship and support from working faculty advisers. The competition, which launched in 2021, is a two-semester program in which participating student teams receive hands-on experience in entrepreneurship.

Three biological sciences students participated in the Catalyst Competition. The competition, which launched in 2021, is a two-semester program in which participating student teams receive hands-on experience in entrepreneurship.

Outstanding Graduate in Learning Award.
Outstanding Graduate in Discovery Award.
Outstanding Graduate in Engagement Award.

Robert H. Martin Award.

Salaries for professors at Clemson University.
Biological Sciences Graduate Student Association Awards

Biological Sciences Graduate Student Association Awards

Outstanding Graduate in Learning Award.
Outstanding Graduate in Discovery Award.
Outstanding Graduate in Engagement Award.

Hap Wheeler Distinguished BSGSA Member

Commitment to Graduate Student Life

Commitment to Research

Saara campus innovation and entrepreneurship program representatives. Following faculty advisers. As part of the program, teams received mentorship and support from working faculty advisers. As part of the program, teams received mentorship and support from working faculty advisers. The competition, which launched in 2021, is a two-semester program in which participating student teams receive hands-on experience in entrepreneurship.

The next edition of our newsletter will highlight some of the faculty and staff who make the magic happen that leads to these successes.

After the Masters Ceremony on May 11, BioSci faculty and staff gathered to celebrate the Class of 2023.

Note from the Chair

Every May I think I can't be prouder of BioSci students, and every year! I am incredibly proud of all of our graduates and award winners this year!

Please help me congratulate the Class of 2023! They are 300 members strong with 223 Biological Sciences B.A./B.S., 31 Microbiology B.A./B.S., and 46 M.S. and Ph.D. graduates.

M.S. and Ph.D. Graduates

— Prakrit Subba and Kea Payton.

Ph.D. and support outreach programs for STEM-minded students in rural and underrepresented communities.

Preston Harrison, Biological Sciences. Research Adviser: Antonio Baeza.

Tucker transferred to Clemson from Western Carolina University in Fall 2021. Since then, he's explored science outside the classroom. He made the most of the resources available, graduating with Departmental Honors. For his work, he was given the Outstanding Senior in Discovery.

Preston Harrison, Biological Sciences. Research Adviser: Antonio Baeza.

Morgan Steiner, Biological Sciences and Chemistry. Research Adviser: Peter van den Hurk.

Morgan Steiner, Biological Sciences and Chemistry. Research Adviser: Peter van den Hurk.

Morgan Steiner, Biological Sciences and Chemistry. Research Adviser: Peter van den Hurk.

Mir Alvee Ahmed, Ph.D. candidate in Microbiology. Faculty Adviser: Barbara Campbell.

Kea Payton, Ph.D. candidate in Biological Sciences. Faculty Adviser/Nominator: Michael Rosowski.

Peng Zhang, Ph.D. candidate in Biological Sciences. Faculty Adviser/Nominator: Matt Richardson.

Tucker was awarded the Robert H. Martin Award.

And if you are able to support BioSci to help increase opportunities for our students to conduct research, present at conferences and talk with the community, please consider donating to the Biological Sciences or Microbiology Excellence Funds.

Read more about the Catalyst Competition and all the projects.

Daniel Malagon is a graduate student in the Department of Biological Sciences. He has been a successful undergraduate science teaching, particularly in their sincere interest in and concern for the students’ learning. As part of the program, teams received mentorship and support from working faculty advisers.

The competition, which launched in 2021, is a two-semester program in which participating student teams receive hands-on experience in entrepreneurship.

Three biological sciences students participated in the Catalyst Competition. The competition, which launched in 2021, is a two-semester program in which participating student teams receive hands-on experience in entrepreneurship.

Outstanding Graduate in Learning Award.
Outstanding Graduate in Discovery Award.
Outstanding Graduate in Engagement Award.

Click here to learn more about the Catalyst Competition.

Morgan Steiner, Biological Sciences and Chemistry. Research Adviser: Peter van den Hurk.

Morgan Steiner, Biological Sciences and Chemistry. Research Adviser: Peter van den Hurk.

Tucker transferred to Clemson from Western Carolina University in Fall 2021. Since then, he's explored science outside the classroom. He made the most of the resources available, graduating with Departmental Honors. For his work, he was given the Outstanding Senior in Discovery.

Preston Harrison, Biological Sciences. Research Adviser: Antonio Baeza.

Tucker was awarded the Robert H. Martin Award.

And if you are able to support BioSci to help increase opportunities for our students to conduct research, present at conferences and talk with the community, please consider donating to the Biological Sciences or Microbiology Excellence Funds.

Read more about the Catalyst Competition and all the projects.

Daniel Malagon is a graduate student in the Department of Biological Sciences. He has been a successful undergraduate science teaching, particularly in their sincere interest in and concern for the stu