Return to Work

No Shortage of PPE

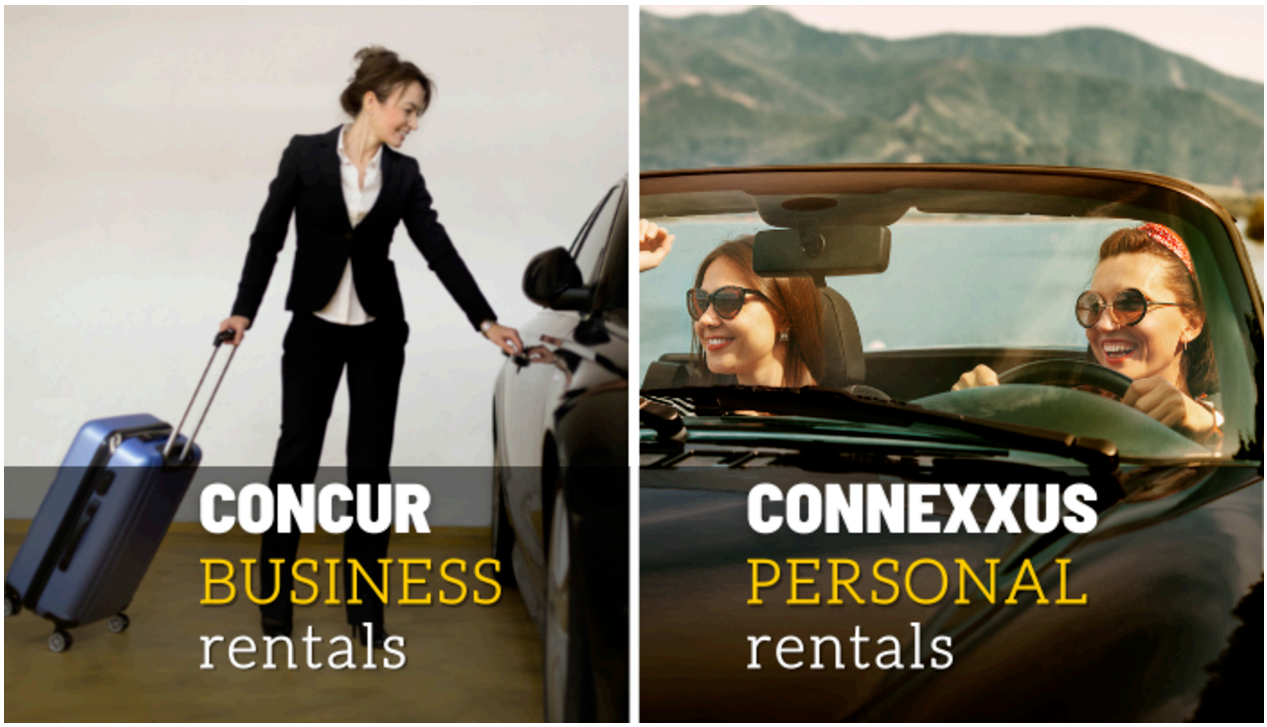

The PPE Store Bulks Up to Support Return to Work

In preparation for an increased need for PPE and cleaning supplies as more faculty and staff return to campus, and due to widely fluctuating supply and pricing, Strategic Procurement has placed bulk orders for these items which will be stocked and managed by our Logistics team to ensure a consistent supply of critical items at a competitive price. Stock will continue to be replenished as necessary.

Visit the PPE Store Program on Blink to learn how to order available COVIDPPE items in Oracle.

Return to Travel

Car Rentals

Concur for Business Car Rentals | Connexxus for Personal Car Rentals

Want to take advantage of UC rates when booking a rental car for personal use? Make sure to use Connexxus.

Connexxus is UC's system-wide travel portal. Concur users can navigate to Connexxus from the Concur homepage by expanding the Company Notes section and clicking on Connexxus Resources. Select your campus and sign in with Single Sign-On (Business Systems). When you enter the Connexxus portal navigate to the Personal Travel tile and select your car rental agency of choice.

The rates for personal bookings via Connexxus are the same as for business bookings via Concur but the business-related car insurance is not included.

Rental agencies are increasing their verification measures at the counter with the intention of making sure renters are actual employees. We have heard from campus colleagues that they are being asked to show their UC identification in order to pick up their reserved vehicle. So for personal car rentals make sure to book through Connexxus!

IPPS For Small Business

Small Business First Strategy

UC PROCUREMENT

Anthony Singleton, Chief Small Business Officer shared his strategy for implementing the Small Business First program at UC San Diego. Click the play button to watch the interview featured in the UC Procurement Quarterly Newsletter.

To support small businesses, the University of California has adopted the Small Business First program. Small Business First mandates that all non-construction UC contracts and procurement between $10,000 and $250,000 that cannot be procured via an existing strategically-sourced agreement be awarded to a certified Small Business or Disabled Veteran Business Enterprise, wherever practicable.

Benefits of the Small Business First Program:

- Promotes UC San Diego’s Interest and commitment to the economic growth of San Diego County
- Increases competition
- Promotes innovation
- Provides multiple procurement channels for goods and services
- Gives access to new business opportunities

Small Business First is a win-win! It streamlines the procurement process and adds value.

Learn what UC San Diego's Small Business Development Office has been doing to support this program by watching Anthony's interview above or reading the transcript.

The Small Business First program (SB First) was the perfect disruption to intentionally increase small business participation and contracting opportunities for all the right reasons. Implementing the SB First program with our suppliers was almost a no-brainer for us. It was a natural extension of the UC San Diego Open for Small Business program we had already created to address the impact of COVID-19. The pandemic had made it increasingly challenging for small businesses to stay afloat. The Open for Small Business program was committed to saving these small businesses by reaching out to inform them we were still open and available and finding new ways to connect them with our campus clients.

IPPS for Sustainability

Surplus Custom Furniture Program

A New Life for Modular Furniture

Surplus Sales routinely experiences a high intake of semi-modular or configurable office furniture. Historically, the market resale value of this type of furniture is limited because it has to be assembled and installed and often needs costly retrofitting and ergo adjustments for use in a new space.

Since 2015, Surplus Sales has offered Surplus Custom Furniture services, which include consultation, custom configuration, refurbishing, delivery, and installation. The program has started to pick up momentum as more departments prepare for the transition from remote work back to the office.

Surplus Sales recently expanded on this program by partnering with the Environmental Health and Safety (EH&S) ergonomic office team at UC San Diego Health to install ergonomic upgrades that combine a hybrid of surplus items and new materials. In July of 2021, Surplus completed 12 ergo office retrofits and 8 custom-fit office installations.

Reutilization of configurable furniture in a UC San Diego office is a win-win in terms of sustainability, and savings. Before Surplus began offering custom build services, much of UC San Diego's surplus of configurable furniture went to the landfill (for cases where the material was not recyclable). A typical Surplus installation will cost 35% of a comparable estimate from a furniture supplier/installer. Additionally, Surplus Sales can complete an install in 2-3 weeks compared to 6-8 weeks for new furniture suppliers.

Logistics Electric Fleet in the Spotlight

L2.0 Carbon Neutral Last Mile Initiative

Robbie Jacob, Associate Director Logistics had the opportunity to speak with White House National Climate Advisor, Gina McCarthy, and Congressman Mike Levin about the L2.0 Carbon Neutral Last Mile initiative during their visit to UC San Diego.

In 2019 Logistics began replacing its carbon-emitting vehicles with electric vehicles and is on track to support a 100%-electric distribution fleet by 2025. To offset the energy required to charge the heavy-duty fleet, the L2.0 team is working with vendors and campus partners on a plan to upgrade and augment the solar energy system at Logistics' distribution hub on Trade Street. The Trade Street warehouse, with its existing solar system and battery energy storage, is already close to being a net-zero facility. The upgrade will close the gap.

Updates on the progress of the carbon neutral last mile initiative are posted on the Logistics 2.0 page on Blink.

Official Launch of The Trove

A Treasure Trove of Logistics Services at University Centers

Congratulations to Integrated Procure-to-Pay Solutions (IPPS) Logistics and Housing Dining Hospitality (HDH) for launching The Trove, a new campus hub for enhanced mail and package services at UC San Diego.

The Trove project began over a year ago as part of Logistics' Consolidated Student Mail strategy which uses a holistic approach to enrich the campus experience by transforming mail and parcel services with advanced technology, increased safety, and expanded service levels.

In partnership with HDH, IPPS installed 229 smart lockers at The Trove to initiate a contactless package pickup system for student residents in time for the start of the winter quarter.

As you can imagine, during the pandemic this was a great treat for students to not have to worry about dealing with contact when it comes to (picking up) their packages.

- Hemlata Jahvari, Executive Director Housing Dining & Hospitality Services, The Trove Grand Opening Event

Expanding services beyond the student experience is The Trove's new Mailing Center, a public-facing postal annex that serves the personal shipping and mailing needs of the entire campus community. The Mailing Center at The Trove extends its highly competitive, university-contracted shipping rates to all clients. Stop by today to mail a package, rent a private mailbox, or drop off pre-paid packages. Visit the Mailing Center Blink page for hours and additional information.

The launch of The Trove at UC San Diego is the first of many key achievements in the Consolidated Student Mail strategy. In partnership with HDH, IPPS is evaluating how smart locker technology can be applied beyond package pickup, to expand service levels in other areas across campus.

I'm so excited to have achieved part of our mission with the opening of The Trove, and there is so much more to come..."

- Tim Wheeler, Associate Director Logistics, Student Mail, The Trove Grand Opening Event.
