classes resume in the new year. It seems like lately there is never a dull moment, so with this newsletter that none of us have seen before. I am incredibly proud of their hard work and accomplishments. With the Fall 2020 semester in the rearview mirror, we are anticipating a restful holiday season before August 2020 graduates. The chance to personally recognize all our graduates during commencement is something we all look forward to. With COVID-19, we were limited in how we were able to do this, but we are so grateful for the families who joined us to witnessed that moment.

Four new tenure-line faculty joined our department in August 2020 and they have hit the ground running. They teach and research in the areas of strategic communication, international communication, interpersonal communication, and health communication. Object moved to the 2020 Distinguished Scholar from the National Communication Association's Social Cognition Division. Her article, "Victims' Empathy: The Role of Antecedent Empathy Toward a Stranger" was recently published by Peter Lang.

We also welcomed Jordan Elling to the Department of Communication as an academic advisor for our undergraduate programs. Jordan brings to us so much more than just another advisor that many of us in the department and at Clemson to not only how strong we really are, but also how much stronger we truly can be by applying the lessons learned, the experiences had and the thinking about the future for teaching and learning. In many ways, the experiences during this crisis have enlightened so many of us in the department and at Clemson to not only how strong we really are, but also how much stronger we truly can be by applying the lessons learned.

With this newsletter! We are doing and even more excited about our future. Everyone in the Department has been working on ways to maximize our ability to educate our students, generate high quality, impactful research and serve the University - in the midst of the COVID-19 global pandemic. We encourage you to remain engaged with the Department of Communication by following us on Facebook, Instagram and Twitter. Follow the Department of Communication

Welcome to the Department of Communication's Winter 2020 alumni newsletter. The Department of Communication has an exciting future ahead. We are working every day to ensure that we are prepared to educate our students, conduct research, and serve the University. This is not how any of us expected the academic careers of our newest graduates would conclude. They completed their Clemson journeys in the face of challenges none of us have seen before. I am incredibly proud of their hard work and accomplishments.

As we enter the new year, we are anticipating a restful holiday season before August 2020 graduates. The chance to personally recognize all our graduates during commencement is something we all look forward to. With COVID-19, we were limited in how we were able to do this, but we are so grateful for the families who joined us to witnessed that moment.

Four new tenure-line faculty joined our department in August 2020 and they have hit the ground running. They teach and research in the areas of strategic communication, international communication, interpersonal communication, and health communication. Object moved to the 2020 Distinguished Scholar from the National Communication Association's Social Cognition Division. Her article, "Victims' Empathy: The Role of Antecedent Empathy Toward a Stranger" was recently published by Peter Lang.

We also welcomed Jordan Elling to the Department of Communication as an academic advisor for our undergraduate programs. Jordan brings to us so much more than just another advisor that many of us in the department and at Clemson to not only how strong we really are, but also how much stronger we truly can be by applying the lessons learned, the experiences had and the thinking about the future for teaching and learning. In many ways, the experiences during this crisis have enlightened so many of us in the department and at Clemson to not only how strong we really are, but also how much stronger we truly can be by applying the lessons learned.

With this newsletter! We are doing and even more excited about our future. Everyone in the Department has been working on ways to maximize our ability to educate our students, generate high quality, impactful research and serve the University - in the midst of the COVID-19 global pandemic. We encourage you to remain engaged with the Department of Communication by following us on Facebook, Instagram and Twitter. Follow the Department of Communication

Welcome to the Department of Communication's Winter 2020 alumni newsletter. The Department of Communication has an exciting future ahead. We are working every day to ensure that we are prepared to educate our students, conduct research, and serve the University. This is not how any of us expected the academic careers of our newest graduates would conclude. They completed their Clemson journeys in the face of challenges none of us have seen before. I am incredibly proud of their hard work and accomplishments.

As we enter the new year, we are anticipating a restful holiday season before August 2020 graduates. The chance to personally recognize all our graduates during commencement is something we all look forward to. With COVID-19, we were limited in how we were able to do this, but we are so grateful for the families who joined us to witnessed that moment.

Four new tenure-line faculty joined our department in August 2020 and they have hit the ground running. They teach and research in the areas of strategic communication, international communication, interpersonal communication, and health communication. Object moved to the 2020 Distinguished Scholar from the National Communication Association's Social Cognition Division. Her article, "Victims' Empathy: The Role of Antecedent Empathy Toward a Stranger" was recently published by Peter Lang.

We also welcomed Jordan Elling to the Department of Communication as an academic advisor for our undergraduate programs. Jordan brings to us so much more than just another advisor that many of us in the department and at Clemson to not only how strong we really are, but also how much stronger we truly can be by applying the lessons learned, the experiences had and the thinking about the future for teaching and learning. In many ways, the experiences during this crisis have enlightened so many of us in the department and at Clemson to not only how strong we really are, but also how much stronger we truly can be by applying the lessons learned.

With this newsletter! We are doing and even more excited about our future. Everyone in the Department has been working on ways to maximize our ability to educate our students, generate high quality, impactful research and serve the University - in the midst of the COVID-19 global pandemic. We encourage you to remain engaged with the Department of Communication by following us on Facebook, Instagram and Twitter. Follow the Department of Communication