With the Fall 2020 semester in the rearview mirror, we are anticipating a restful holiday season before classes resume in the new year. It seems like lately there is never a dull moment, so with this newsletter we try to convey just a snapshot of the department’s recent accomplishments.

The first of our featured faculty members is Jordan Morehouse. He joined the Department of Communication as a new assistant professor in August 2020 and they have hit the ground running. They teach and research in the areas of strategic communication and social media and will conduct research in sports communication, strategic communication and health communication and are clearly top emerging leaders in the field.

We also welcomed Skye Wingate to the Department of Communication as an academic advisor for our undergraduate program. Since we last heard from her in January, she has already clarified their definition of success and how it can be met. Developing a solid understanding of how their program can be improved is a critical component of our department.

With the 2020 Distinguished Educator Award from the National Communication Association for Digital Experiences, Dr. Pugliese has clearly established herself as a leading researcher in the field of computer-mediated communication. With her research, she not only expands our understanding of the digital environment but how communication takes place.

Department Chair Joe Mazer, Ph.D.

With the 2020 Sue DeWine Book Award from the National Communication Association for "Three Experiments," was recently published in the Journal of Computer-Mediated Communication, one of the best part of what we do in higher education. This is not how any of us expected the academic careers August 2020 graduates. The chance to personally recognize all our graduates during commencement is the best part of what we do in higher education. This is not how any of us expected the academic careers August 2020 graduates. The chance to personally recognize all our graduates during commencement is

In many ways, the experiences during this crisis have enlightened so many of us in the department and at Clemson to not only how strong we really are, but how we have leveraged online and hybrid learning to serve the University - in the midst of the COVID-19 pandemic, we have moved online and maintained 100% of our students. We are incredibly grateful for your generous support.

Four new tenure-line faculty joined our department in August 2020 and they have hit the ground running. They teach and research in the areas of strategic communication and social media and are clearly top emerging leaders in the field.

Everyone in the Department has been working on ways to help our students navigate issues that are made more challenging by the COVID-19 pandemic. We also welcomed

The first of our featured faculty members is Jordan Morehouse. He joined the Department of Communication as a new assistant professor in August 2020 and they have hit the ground running. They teach and research in the areas of strategic communication and social media and will conduct research in sports communication, strategic communication and health communication and are clearly top emerging leaders in the field.

We also welcomed Skye Wingate to the Department of Communication as an academic advisor for our undergraduate program. Since we last heard from her in January, she has already clarified their definition of success and how it can be met. Developing a solid understanding of how their program can be improved is a critical component of our department.

With the 2020 Distinguished Educator Award from the National Communication Association for Digital Experiences, Dr. Pugliese has clearly established herself as a leading researcher in the field of computer-mediated communication. With her research, she not only expands our understanding of the digital environment but how communication takes place.

Department Chair Joe Mazer, Ph.D.

With the 2020 Sue DeWine Book Award from the National Communication Association for "Three Experiments," was recently published in the Journal of Computer-Mediated Communication, one of the best part of what we do in higher education. This is not how any of us expected the academic careers August 2020 graduates. The chance to personally recognize all our graduates during commencement is

In many ways, the experiences during this crisis have enlightened so many of us in the department and at Clemson to not only how strong we really are, but how we have leveraged online and hybrid learning to serve the University - in the midst of the COVID-19 pandemic, we have moved online and maintained 100% of our students. We are incredibly grateful for your generous support.

Four new tenure-line faculty joined our department in August 2020 and they have hit the ground running. They teach and research in the areas of strategic communication and social media and are clearly top emerging leaders in the field.

Everyone in the Department has been working on ways to help our students navigate issues that are made more challenging by the COVID-19 pandemic. We also welcomed