Our newest graduates would conclude. They completed their Clemson journeys in the face of challenges unimaginable at the beginning of last year, and their perseverance and courage is truly inspiring.

Our faculty are achieving national success in their respective fields. Skye Wingate, an Assistant Professor of Communication, received the 2020 Distinguished Educator Award from the National Communication Association and received the 2020 Sue DeWine Book Award from the National Communication Association. Her article, "Victims’ Narratives of Their Online Harassment Experiences," was recently published in the Journal of Computer-Mediated Communication, one of the top journals in the discipline.

Brandon Boatwright, an Associate Professor of Communication, received the 2020 Sue DeWine Book Award from the National Communication Association and received the 2020 Distinguished Educator Award from the National Communication Association. His book, "Victims’ Narratives of Their Online Harassment Experiences," was recently published in the Journal of Computer-Mediated Communication, one of the top journals in the discipline.

The Department of Communication at the College of Behavioral, Social and Health Sciences' graduation ceremony. This ceremony recognized May and August 2020 graduates. The chance to personally recognize all our graduates during commencement is a highlight of our year. We were thrilled to celebrate the accomplishments of our newest graduates.

The Department of Communication is excited to announce the upcoming publication of "Interpersonal Communication: Strategies, Social Media, and Health Communication," forthcoming book.

I encourage you to remain engaged with the Department of Communication by following us on Facebook (@ClemsonCOMM), Twitter (@ClemsonCOMM), and Instagram (@clemson_comm). We always enjoy hearing your thoughts and suggestions, or if you just want to chat, please don't hesitate to contact me. We are thrilled about what the future holds for the Department of Communication and your support has been instrumental in our success.

Have a happy holiday season, a healthy and prosperous new year and...Go Tigers!