New Jersey Institute of Technology (NJIT) has reaffirmed its status among the nation’s most elite and productive research institutions by once again achieving an R1 status — the highest designation — by the Carnegie Classification.

NJIT Machine Learning Expert Pan Xu Combats COVID Vaccine Inequity
Xu studied COVID vaccine data from Minnesota to design equitable methods of distributing vital resources during any widespread emergency.

New Research Shows How 2D Layouts Can Be Popped Up into 3D Structures
Imagine designing an inexpensive, flat and strong structure that bends perfectly into Spaceship Earth from Disney’s EPCOT theme park.

In the media:
Reza Curtmola Comments on NJ Cybersecurity During Russo-Ukrainian Conflict - NJBIZ
Could the Russo-Ukrainian conflict critically impact NJ business, infrastructure and financial institutions?

According to Reza Curtmola, director of the Cybersecurity Research Center, the increased dependence on remote conferencing platforms such as Zoom and Microsoft Teams could potentially pose a risk to industry in the Garden State - if Russia decided to make it a target.

GWICS Welcomes New Students to the Club
GWICS (Graduate Women in Computing Society) welcomes new graduate computer science students to a slice of YWCC hospitality as they embark on their journey in technology.