Dear LSU Families,

As we enter the second half of this unprecedented year, we want to remind you of our commitment to your family’s well-being. Though the pandemic has imposed immense pressure on everyone, and it has required each of us to extend our boundaries, our ability to operate safely within its boundaries will continue to increase as we learn more about the impact and spread of the virus.

Together, our campus community has faced and overcome countless challenges, and your support has been vital along the way. It hasn't been easy. The pandemic has put immense stress on families, and their children. As we look forward to connecting with family and friends for the holiday party, please remember the celebration we wish can never happen. The pandemic is not over.

We are grateful for all the support you have provided during these difficult times. The LSU Student Emergency Support Fund helps us make a real difference in the lives of our students and families.

As we plan for the Wintersession classes, we are taking into consideration all available information to inform our decisions. We expect more classes to be delivered in-person, with approximately half of all classes being conducted face-to-face. We recommend students to check their class schedules to understand the in-person or online learning format.

It's time to start preparing for final exams! Encourage your students to use the Tiger Family Talks webinar series to plan their finals. Join us for our next Tiger Family Talks webinar on Tuesday, November 10 at 6 p.m. CT.

As a reminder, Evangeline and the Quiet Zone, both on the third floor of the LSU Student Union, will be available for students to study. The Tiger Family Talks webinar on November 10 will focus on stress management, an extremely important topic during these challenging times.

Our office will host Thankful Tiger Family Week on November 12-19 to celebrate YOU, our families. What are your plans for winter break? Visit our LSU Parent & Family Programs Facebook page for more info or to join the discussion.

LSU Parent & Family Programs hopes you have enjoyed reading the November Email Update. Visit our newsletter to view all our latest news and updates. Please let us know what you think, and we look forward to connecting with you soon.

Families, we appreciate your continued support and encouragement. Stay safe, stay strong, and we look forward to seeing you soon.

Sincerely,
