For the final word, it's time for our... Who is that voice in your head you can’t shake? That inner critic that challenges you at every turn? For many of us, they are an ever-present presence. They speak in whispers or shouts, often uninvited and unplanned. But what if you could turn off the critic and listen to the voice of reason instead? What if you could create a space where your inner critic is not welcome? This week’s Student Org of the Week is SEE, the Student Entertainment Events organization, offering practical training to its members in the planning, promotion, and production of both sponsored events and the services offered to other student organizations.

For the final word, it's time for our... And that's the Word.
