

KEEPING UP with the Kantarians

Director's Corner

I'm typing this the day after the October time slew period has ended - the two week period where Europe's clocks go back one week before North America's. The chairs of Kantara's workgroups will be happy to see the back of it because inevitably we lose valuable meeting time. It seemed that we managed pretty well this Fall, with only very minor upset. Well done the Leadership Council (and the WG Chairs that comprise it) for good management.

NGI Trust

The European Union Horizon 2020 NGI_Trust project of which Kantara Europe is a consortium partner, has released the second open call. This is a great funding opportunity for Internet innovators, researchers, developers, SMEs, that are working in the field of privacy and trust enhancing technologies.

See the Indicative list of possible areas of concern/opportunities for further guidance on the expected use cases.

Please bear in mind that the NGI_Trust consortium expects that proposals submitted to the open call will seek to develop use cases that can be scaled up or deployed at the European level to support practical privacy and trust enhancing solutions for the human-centric internet.

Deadline to submit proposals: 1 December 2019 at 18:00 CET

Consumer Identity World EU Recap

We had a great turnout of Kantara members and supporters. Nixu Cybersecurity's Martin Sandren and ED Colin Wallis presented in the Trustbuilding track - Colin introducing Kantara's Trustbuilding activities to curtain-raise Martin's thought-provoking presentation 'Identity at the edge - Finland style'. There were great sessions too from iWelcome's Esther Hoeksema, ForgeRock's Allan Foster, Meeco's Katryna Dow, Ian Glazer and Lubna Dajani. The closing panel - Next Steps and Trends in Consumer Identity Management - featured no less than 6 people - a format seldom used because it is so challenging to moderate. What could go wrong, having Ed Ackerman (Onfido), Allan Foster (ForgeRock) Ian Glazer (ID Pro and Salesforce), Dan Johnson (Mastercard), Jo Vercammen (Meeco) and Colin Wallis (Kantara) all on one stage? ;-) There was little need for moderation as these folks sparred with each other, trading perspectives and predictions. What a blast!
