Cost Transfer Workflow

As part of a new enhancement to Cost Transfer workflow, you will no longer see workflow steps showing as automatically rejected by "workflowsystem". You may see workflow steps that are approved by "workflowsystem", but look for the current "assigned to" and if applicable, see "future assignee".
Cost Transfer Dual Roles

Users are now able to have both the initiator (PPM Project Adjustments) and approver (Cost Adjustment Approver) roles. Users with both roles will not be able to approve their own initiated cost transfers. The recommendation is to only request both roles if needed. Example scenarios include small departments where employees need to function in both roles, or an employee who has moved departments, but is still supporting the previous department as an initiator or an approver.

To request additional roles, submit a Services & Support role request form here.

Note: Small departments with fewer users will need to identify a backup approver. For example, if the primary approver is also the initiator and cannot approve their own adjustments, a secondary or backup approver needs to be identified.

Who will be impacted?
