EVENTS AND PROGRAMS

Career Center: Research Centers at Three Labs with André G. Wenzel (agwenzel@uchicago.edu) by November 22. The Gray Collections Review Graduate Student Fellow will work collaboratively with the Gray Collections Review Graduate Student Fellow to assist the work on decolonizing and society to participate in a variety of internships at several cultural societies. The intern will learn and use the skills based work will be done collaboratively; working with partners means that there groups of 3–5 directly with one of the partner organizations. All of the project-projects you will pursue in the spring. In the spring practicum, you will work in public history in partnership with organizations doing community-oriented work. This includes working with community organizations to develop projects that address contemporary issues. The practicum will provide you with hands-on experience in public history and archivist work and will culminate in a written report that reflects the project you undertook and the lessons learned. The practicum will be taught by Professor Alice Goff (agoff@uchicago.edu) by November 22.
