A Greeting From Your University Chaplain

Dear Tufts community,

Last Wednesday, the Interfaith Center was festooned with flowers and twinkling lights as students and staff gathered for The University Chaplaincy's second annual Senior and Young Alumni Awards. With reverence and levity alike, we celebrated nominees who have embodied and expanded our shared mission to support diverse religious, spiritual, and philosophical communities; provide interfaith leadership; engage and educate about faith and social justice; and offer spiritual care both during and beyond their time at Tufts.

One senior was chosen as the winner for each of the four awards (picture above), and it was so striking that each of the forty-plus nominees had contributed so widely across our communities and programs with such amazing creativity, compassion, and commitment. These are no small gifts!

We are a community of many identities, beliefs and practices that thrives on the unique contributions and collaborations of so many. As poet Gwendolyn Brooks has so simply yet powerfully proclaimed, "We are each other's." These seniors shared these gifts and passions amidst and through a global pandemic and moral crises too innumerable to count. Leaving campus as first years in the early pandemic, they had to find a way to connect virtually and then re-build their communities. I am deeply grateful for their perseverance and presence. Under extraordinary circumstances, they have shown us how to lead and learn, to reflect and rejoice.

May these coming days (especially after papers, projects and exams are completed!) bring more opportunities to lift up these and all Tufts' graduates.

Pax et Lux,
Elyse Nelson Winger
University Chaplain

MEET TWICE MONTHLY

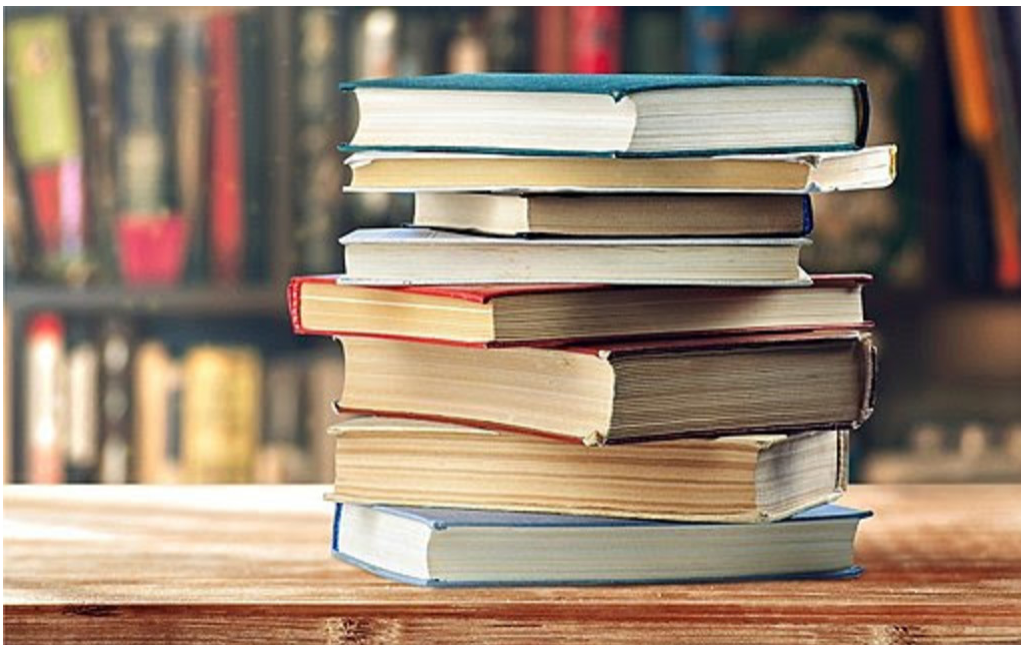

Fall through Spring Semesters

Dialogue Ambassador with the Generous Listening and Dialogue Center (GLADC)

Registration Closes Monday May 15 at 11:59 p.m.

The goal of the Generous Listening and Dialogue Ambassadors program is to establish a cadre of trained dialogue ambassadors who are prepared to co-lead discussions with faculty, staff, and students trained in generous listening, comprised of listening to oneself, to others, and to nature. Ambassadors will serve as a central resource and hub for student outreach through the network of student organizations and residence life programs. They will support Tufts in providing its students with the skills that will support successful civic engagement. Interested students should email GLADC for more information.
