

Adolescent Health: Immunization Tip Sheet Newly Updated in English and Spanish

The Nurse Practitioner Healthcare Foundation (NPHF) is pleased to announce its newly updated Adolescent Health: Immunization Tip Sheet.

Immunizations are central to ensuring that adolescents achieve and maintain good health into and through adulthood. Therefore, immunizations are an important component of adolescent preventative care. Healthcare professionals are integral to ensuring that adolescents have preventative care and the immunization protection that they need. Every encounter between an adolescent and a clinician should be an opportunity to check the adolescent's immunization status.

The Adolescent Health: Immunization Tip Sheet is a helpful handout for healthcare providers to use to communicate important immunization information to their adolescent patients during tele-health visits, yearly exams (sports physicals and school physicals), and routine office appointments. The patient education Tip Sheet is available on the NPHF website in both English and Spanish versions. It includes information for recommended immunizations for adolescents, common responses to immunizations, and what an adolescent should do if there is a response. It also includes helpful hints for making good healthcare choices, using six "S" words for adolescent health: Sleep, Stress, Safety, Sex, Support and Say No.
