Study Abroad

LMU Study Abroad Newsletter - January 2022 Edition

Full-time summer programs give you the opportunity to explore a new country, culture, and lifestyle while earning academic credits. Whether you’re interested in language immersion, cultural exchange, or hands-on work experiences, there are options for you!

The Student Global Leadership Conference (SGLC)
LEADING BY EXAMPLE: MAKING A SOCIAL IMPACT

February 15. A six-week paid summer program designed to provide undergraduate students with an opportunity to gain real-world experience in international affairs, diplomacy, and policy. Participants will work with the U.S. State Department and other US government agencies on a variety of projects related to international affairs. It is an opportunity for students to gain practical experience, build a professional network, and contribute to the development of global leaders.

Charles B. Rangel International Affairs Summer Enrichment Program
2022.

American Indian/Alaska Native, Asian, Black/African American, Hispanic/Latino or identify as an ethnicity typically underrepresented on study abroad programs (e.g., Native American, LGBTQIA+). Deadline: January 15, 2023. This scholarship provides up to $8,000 for tuition, housing, and travel expenses. Recipients will participate in the program and receive mentorship from Rangel Center staff. For more information, visit the website.

Fulbright U.S. Student Program

Eligible candidates must have a minimum GPA of 3.00; be a U.S. citizen, U.S. national or permanent resident. The program provides grants to individuals interested in international cultural exchanges, including study, research, or teaching. Participants are expected to promote cultural understanding and exchange by sharing their experiences with others in the United States and abroad. For more information, visit the website.

Benjamin A. Gilman International Scholarship
Scholarships of up to $5,000 are available for students who have previously received Federal Pell Grants and are interested in participating in study abroad programs. Eligible candidates must be Pell-grant recipients, U.S. citizens or permanent residents, and demonstrate financial need. The scholarship is open to students enrolling in programs in the fall or spring. For more information, visit the website.

OFFICE OF NATIONAL AND INTERNATIONAL FELLOWSHIPS (ONIF)

Receive up to $5,000 to pursue an international internship, study abroad, or research project. ONIF offers various scholarships and grants to support students’ academic and professional growth. The program is open to undergraduate and graduate students. For more information, visit the website.

The Washington Center Academic Internship
Spend your summer term living, working, and exploring the land and vibrant culture of the Washington, D.C. area. The Washington Center offers internships in various fields, including government, politics, and public policy. Participants will work for a range of organizations, gain professional experience, and build valuable contacts. For more information, visit the website.

Washington Center for International Affairs Academic Internship

Deadline: February 1.

Eligible candidates must be undergraduate or graduate students with a minimum GPA of 3.2. The program provides a stipend to cover the costs for tuition, travel, housing, and two meals per day. It also provides a travel stipend for international students to cover the cost of a round-trip flight. Participants will work in a variety of settings, including government agencies, international organizations, and non-profit organizations. For more information, visit the website.

LMU summer programming for graduating seniors - PROGRAM PREVIEW

Ways to Connect with the Study Abroad team

LMU Summer Abroad Newsletter - January 2022 Edition

Sign up to receive our future emails.