COLLEGE NEWS AND INFORMATION

IVC Launches Black Student Success Scholars Program

IVC kicked off the celebration of Black History Month in February with the introduction of the Black Student Success Scholars (BSSS) program. BSSS is a new program started by IVC Counselors Heather Johnson and Taliah Chatterfield. The mission of the program is to connect students from the African Diaspora to experience Black Excellence through a safe and welcoming environment. Read More »

Students from Santa Ana Unified Visit IDEA at ATEP

Students from nine high schools in the Santa Ana Unified School District had an opportunity to learn more about IVC's School of Integrated Design, Engineering and Automation \(IDEA\) when they took a field trip to the campus on February 10. The nearly 300 high school students spent time touring the school and rotating into classrooms to learn more about the programs offered at the campus. Read More »

Alumnus Grows Company He Started While at IVC

Hasim Sevinc took a step into the business world while he was a student at IVC and hasn't stopped since. In 2019, while studying at IVC, he started his own company, Ephesus, that specializes in mobility scooters and electric wheelchairs. He transferred to UCLA in 2020 and will graduate this winter with his degree in economics. Read More »

Administration of Justice Department Cooperative Work Experience Program Returns to IVC

During the Fall 2022 semester, IVC Campus Police worked with the Administration of Justice Department to bring back the Cooperative Work Experience \(CWE\) program. CWE is an internship program developed to further student careers and educational preparation in criminal justice. CWE internships provide students with a valuable opportunity for supervised work and/or volunteer experience which allows them to earn college credit toward their major. The four students who completed the Fall 2022 CWE program are Nolan Heinemann, Nina Shandraw, Marissa Posada, and George Enriquez.

DMP Program Helps IVC Student Land Dream Job at Disney

From elementary school librarian to scene-setter for high-profile Disney projects, Stephanie Frazier's career journey itself could be mistaken for the plot of a classic Disney story. A detail-oriented model maker working in scenic fabrication for Disney, Frazier's story began in the stacks. And while the aspiring artist always had designs on something grander, the result was something she could never have imagined. Read More »
