Contents of this Month’s Update

David Weisburd
Criminologist and George Mason University professor and CINA Science Committee member, From the Science Committee

Marie Skubak Tillyer accounts for such changes over time.

can have a dramatic impact on city-level crime trends, so it is very important to understand or neighborhoods. Changes in these concentrated crime hot spots account for correlations between place and crime.

A CINA research team has combined approximately 25 data sources to illuminate dynamic patterns of criminal activity and detecting terrorist threats, whether it be federal or private experiences, Hall said: “The experience was invaluable. It Cadet Private First-Class at Mason’s Fairfax Campus.

criminal investigations, and intelligence analysis techniques. In Analysis. Hall currently focuses his academic work on Criminology, Law and Society, with a minor in Intelligence especially in policy making, revealing the policy gaps to make sure we’re doing everything we within a team, how to mine opensource data and present those findings through discussions

Scholars grew from the collaborative experience, agreeing that the hardest part of the project

The summer project focus was to protect the community and its privacy rights. Both CINA

In partnership with CINA and OSPP, the CINA Scholars researched and developed a new Strategy, Policy and Plans (OSPP). Using only unclassified, open form of currency can be used to facilitate criminal activity.

Watch a recent Distinguished Speaker event with Diana Dolliver's as she covers the "Cryptocurrencies and Criminal Investigations: From source data and predictive modeling to uncover the indicators of high-density crime areas.

Join us on Modeling for High-Density Crime Areas" - Thursday, Dr. Marie Tillyer: "Open Source Data and Predictive her organization's work on the way organized crime has weaponized social media. In-person of The Center on Illicit Networks and Transnational Organized Crime who will speak about

Tune in on

"International Cooperation and Criminal Investigations: From Transaction to Networks" with Dave Bolden

Register Now

Learn more about Isaiah Hall

Isaiah Hall

is a Criminology Law and outstanding Service Award this month for his many service

CINA partner Boleslaw Szymański received the NetSci Network Science Service Award

Subscribe to view research and

Stay Connected