Before the pandemic, the Nashman Center rarely shared opportunities for fundraising for and with us.

GIVING OPPORTUNITIES

To apply, email: ronald.paul@gwu.edu.

BECOME A SOCIAL MEDIA INTERN WITH THE ROBERT & JOY C. PAUL KIDNEY CENTER

INTERNSHIP OPPORTUNITIES

GW Coders is an online community that brings together students, faculty, and staff from across the campus. It provides a forum for students, faculty, and staff to participate in discussions about coding and related topics, and to contribute to the development of a shared community of practice. GW Coders is open to anyone who is interested in learning more about coding, sharing knowledge and experiences, and connecting with others who share a passion for this field.

To apply, email: gwcoders@gwu.edu.

ARTREACH FALL CLASSES

In the midst of the pandemic, we have found new ways to partner with community organizations. ArtReach GW is offering free online classes in all virtual. All classes are available online for everyone, from those just getting interested in coding to those who have years of experience; for undergraduate and graduate students; for faculty in any discipline; and for others in the DC community who want to participate!

To find out more, email: artreach@gwu.edu.

HONEY W. NASHMAN CENTER FOR CIVIC ENGAGEMENT AND PUBLIC SERVICE

“Never doubt that a small group of thoughtful, committed citizens can change the world; indeed, it’s the only thing that ever has.” - Margaret Mead

We look forward to seeing you in our workshops and social innovation events (find these... register, find out where to vote, or get your absentee ballot.

In the midst of political chaos in our country, we have focused our efforts on nonpartisan efforts to drive voter participation among our students. GW Votes, a nonpartisan coalition of faculty, staff, students, and alumni, is committed to registering and voting. We have hosted virtual voter registration and voter engagement events in the past.

In addition to our regular programming, we have also added new initiatives to our portfolio of activities. Some examples include virtual town halls with panels of experts on a range of topics, including the impact of the pandemic on communities of color and the role of technology in democracy.

And while we have been able to continue many of our in-person activities, we have also had to adapt to the changing circumstances. We have spent our summer working on ways to continue to meet our needs in many of our communities that are dire and immediate and donations of money or goods may be needed while fostering neighborly relationships. In these times, while we maintain our focus on these and graduate students; for faculty in any discipline; and for others in the DC community who want to participate!

To apply, email: artreach@gwu.edu.

In the midst of the pandemic, we have found new ways to partner with community organizations. ArtReach GW is holding art classes online, sending supplies to students by mail, and teaching in the midst of the national uprisings, we have redoubled our efforts to fight anti-Blackness and examine ourselves to address any implicit or underlying bias. One new initiative is a partnership with the Washington, DC-based Police & Youth program. This partnership includes providing virtual training sessions for police officers, Police & Youth program staff, and community leaders on topics such as implicit bias, cultural competency, and effective communication.

SERVE WITH HEY!

Hey! - Healthy Excited Youth is a nonprofit organization with the mission of encouraging positive change in the community by utilizing young professionals in surrounding areas to educate and engage youth in the issues they care about. Hey! offers virtual opportunities with engagements. This is a great opportunity to connect with members of the Hey! community and work together to create positive change in our community.

To apply, email: info@healthyexcitedyouth.org.

CIVIC ENGAGEMENT AND PUBLIC SERVICE

In the midst of the national uprisings, we have redoubled our efforts to fight anti-Blackness and examine ourselves to address any implicit or underlying bias. One new initiative is a partnership with the Washington, DC-based Police & Youth program. This partnership includes providing virtual training sessions for police officers, Police & Youth program staff, and community leaders on topics such as implicit bias, cultural competency, and effective communication.

SERVE IN OUR COMMUNITY

In the midst of the pandemic, we have found new ways to partner with community organizations. ArtReach GW is holding art classes online, sending supplies to students by mail, and teaching and graduate students; for faculty in any discipline; and for others in the DC community who want to participate!

To apply, email: artreach@gwu.edu.

ARTREACH FALL CLASSES

In the midst of the pandemic, we have found new ways to partner with community organizations. ArtReach GW is offering free online classes in all virtual. All classes are available online for everyone, from those just getting interested in coding to those who have years of experience; for undergraduate and graduate students; for faculty in any discipline; and for others in the DC community who want to participate!

To find out more, email: artreach@gwu.edu.

HONEY W. NASHMAN CENTER FOR CIVIC ENGAGEMENT AND PUBLIC SERVICE

“Never doubt that a small group of thoughtful, committed citizens can change the world; indeed, it’s the only thing that ever has.” - Margaret Mead

We look forward to seeing you in our workshops and social innovation events (find these... register, find out where to vote, or get your absentee ballot.

In the midst of political chaos in our country, we have focused our efforts on nonpartisan efforts to drive voter participation among our students. GW Votes, a nonpartisan coalition of faculty, staff, students, and alumni, is committed to registering and voting. We have hosted virtual voter registration and voter engagement events in the past.

In addition to our regular programming, we have also added new initiatives to our portfolio of activities. Some examples include virtual town halls with panels of experts on a range of topics, including the impact of the pandemic on communities of color and the role of technology in democracy.

And while we have been able to continue many of our in-person activities, we have also had to adapt to the changing circumstances. We have spent our summer working on ways to continue to meet our needs in many of our communities that are dire and immediate and donations of money or goods may be needed while fostering neighborly relationships. In these times, while we maintain our focus on these and graduate students; for faculty in any discipline; and for others in the DC community who want to participate!

To apply, email: artreach@gwu.edu.

ARTREACH FALL CLASSES

In the midst of the pandemic, we have found new ways to partner with community organizations. ArtReach GW is holding art classes online, sending supplies to students by mail, and teaching in the midst of the national uprisings, we have redoubled our efforts to fight anti-Blackness and examine ourselves to address any implicit or underlying bias. One new initiative is a partnership with the Washington, DC-based Police & Youth program. This partnership includes providing virtual training sessions for police officers, Police & Youth program staff, and community leaders on topics such as implicit bias, cultural competency, and effective communication.

SERVE WITH HEY!

Hey! - Healthy Excited Youth is a nonprofit organization with the mission of encouraging positive change in the community by utilizing young professionals in surrounding areas to educate and engage youth in the issues they care about. Hey! offers virtual opportunities with engagements. This is a great opportunity to connect with members of the Hey! community and work together to create positive change in our community.

To apply, email: info@healthyexcitedyouth.org.

CIVIC ENGAGEMENT AND PUBLIC SERVICE

In the midst of the national uprisings, we have redoubled our efforts to fight anti-Blackness and examine ourselves to address any implicit or underlying bias. One new initiative is a partnership with the Washington, DC-based Police & Youth program. This partnership includes providing virtual training sessions for police officers, Police & Youth program staff, and community leaders on topics such as implicit bias, cultural competency, and effective communication.