Dear Colleague,

I've just returned from a vacation in Czech Republic, a place I'd never been to. It reminded me that visiting Europe is always a great adventure — and that the food and beer is almost always awesome.

I've got a few tips for those of you who might want to undertake a similar trip. (No skin in the game as I don't sell the area!).

Four Seasons Travel, a local DMC, handled our logistics. They were terrific, especially when it came to assessing the itinerary and activities on our CroisiEurope river cruise and making sure we didn't overlap on sightseeing. Just so you know, they also handle a lot of celebrities coming to the Czech Republic to film movies.

In Prague, we stayed at the Maximillian Hotel and really liked it. It's in the old town, around eight blocks from the central square and has fantastic food. Our river journey with CroisiEurope was also great fun — a beautiful boat, terrific crew, and oh my, the food was super.

Speaking of Europe, below is our latest newsletter. Please take a browse of the info from Iceland ProCruises and Iceland ProTravel and the final trip report from my PaxMore Greece visit.

Happy selling!

Pax More Greece

- Greece has signed an agreement with Michelin Guide, the French culinary guidebooks, to boost Greek Gastro Tourism. Greek cuisine is among the most popular cuisines in the world, famous for its beloved traditional food and tavernas. In addition, Athens and Thessaloniki, as well as many islands are home to plenty of fine-dining restaurants, and the Greek capital features one new Two MICHELIN star restaurant (Spondi) as well as two restaurants receiving a star for the first time. Two restaurants stand out with their commitment in terms of sustainability and thus receive the MICHELIN Green Star (Delta and Soil). 7 new establishments have been referenced, thus bringing the selection to a total of 27 restaurants.
- The municipality of Thessaloniki is preparing to "build" a "fraternal relationship" with Fort Lauderdale, FL, as the two cities have many elements and characteristics in common, such as for example, their ports, the hosting of many students, the organization of exhibitions and conferences, film festivals, but also tourist traffic.
