

Redtail News

October 2022

Redtail has a big new product announcement coming soon!

We can't share any details just yet, but keep your eyes peeled because we're releasing a solution soon to address a pain point common to many advisors. It's going to save you time and effort and help you ramp up your client and prospect engagement efforts. We can't wait to tell you more!

2022

Financial Planning Career Perceptions

Redtail's 5th Annual Survey is now open!

As with our 2021 survey, this year's survey will be distributed to both financial professionals as well as to students in university programs geared toward future employment in finance. Our aim is to continue our process of learning more about the financial services path and future expectations of those currently working in the industry versus the expectations of those looking to enter the industry soon.

We were excited by both the amount of participation as well as by the results we obtained from last year's survey, as they did point toward some actions both the industry and university programs can take to align professional and student expectations more closely. You can read our Executive Summary of last year's survey here.

Compliant Texting for Financial Advisors

Our Clients Want Us to Text Them. Here's How.

Brian McLaughlin, co-founder of Redtail Technology and president of Orion Advisor Technology, has a new Practice Management piece up at ThinkAdvisor. Brian talks about embracing the opportunity that we now have to communicate with our clients via text, while also recognizing the costs that may come should we neglect to put processes in place in order to remain compliant when doing so.
