Graduate Student Newsletter - Oct. 13, 2022

One graduate student,...

Upcoming Events

Black Grad Society Weekly Meeting: Tuesdays, 10 a.m. - Noon, Lyttle Reynolds Place Black Cultural Center. Two hours for Black Graduate, Law, and Post-Doctoral Students to collaborate in community. Drop in, no registration needed.

Indigenous Ways of Learning Webinar: Oct. 18 - Noon PST (3 p.m. Eastern), Online. Connect with experts for a week-long interactive lecture featuring short video presentations by UO graduate students. Location and other details coming soon.

Professional Development

New grantWISDOM Resource

Institutional Support for Prestigious Fellowship Programs

Overview of Prestigious Fellowship Opportunities and How to Access Guidance.

Proposal Preparation

Grant Writing

Grant Planning

Institutional Support for Prestigious Fellowship Programs

Registration required

Write more about my research. The proposal will be updated with more

Funding Resources

Funding is available for academic and research projects. Visit the Office of Grant Administration and Writing Services to access guidance on:

- Grant Writing
- Research Proposals
- Institutional Support for Prestigious Fellowship Programs

For more information or for grant opportunities and proposal projects, contact Research Development Services at grants@uoregon.edu.

Doctoral Student Student Spotlight

Rachel Gomsrud, MA

Rachel Gomsrud is an enrolled citizen of the Chinook Indian Nation and member of the traditional department of the Chinook Indian Nation, which includes the territories of the Southern Oregon Coast and Northern California, as well as the desert areas of the Pacific Northwest. She is also a member of the UO’s Indigenous Ways of Learning and Leadership Opportunities.

Rachel has been working to protect Chinook salmon and other species of fish, as well as the rights, lands, and sovereignty. She is also a member of the UO’s Indigenous Studies program at UO. Rachel is an enrolled citizen of the Chinook Indian Nation and member of the traditional department of the Chinook Indian Nation.

You are being sent this message based on your affiliation with the University of Oregon.