Applications for the 2024-24 Provost Fellows for Teaching, Leadership, and Mentorship are now open and are due by APR 19.

The Provost Fellow Program is an integral component of the Office of the Provost’s faculty development programming. It provides a significant professional development opportunity for mid-career faculty interested in learning more about academic leadership and contributing to university-level decision making and initiatives.

The 2023-24 fellows are in the areas of teaching, leadership, and mentorship. Each fellow will help shape a high-priority university-wide initiative:

- Teaching: fellows help UO think strategically about ways that newer teaching modalities can support student access and success across degree programs.
- Leadership: fellows help UO develop a rich, culturally responsive and networked mentorship culture across campus.
- Mentorship: fellows work to strengthen the culture of leadership at UO and provide support to local leaders and unit heads.
