Zero Waste Anvil Mobile Application

Over the past two years, the Solid Waste Program has worked with LeAnna Pitts (CPFM Work Management), Sharon Ginn (CPFM Work Management Asset Reliability & Preventative Maintenance), Justin Porter (FASS IT), Brook Eastman (Location Innovation Lab), Justin White (Location Innovation Lab) & Ken Kato (Location Innovation Lab) to develop an App for tracking and charging our recycling collection operations. This interactive, map-based ANVIL app allows our staff to enter barrel collection totals on an iPad for each of our collection sites in real-time. Solid Waste Program Representatives can quickly review and approve collection totals in AiM daily to streamline the external billing process. This has brought several hours of time savings to both Solid Waste and Work Control staff each month.

AssetWorks Conference

Justin Porter (FASS), LeAnna Pitts (CPFM), and Mike Freel (FASS) attended the AssetWorld Conference with 270+ attendees from peer organizations. AssetWorld is an annual gathering of facilities professionals that use AssetWorks products to better manage their facility operations. It is an opportunity to learn what's new, best practices, and network with peers.

Some highlights include:

- Advanced work order billing flexibility, billing an estimate in a single transaction, billing actuals for one subledger and estimates for another, billing more than actual expenses, billing for one subledger and not another (no labor – all material), billing for part of a phase, but then discontinuing billing.

- Improvements to reporting and high charts.

- Team Scheduler sorting and assignment updates.

- Simplifying integrations, reducing cost, and increasing supportability, AssetWorks introduced SDCs (Standard Data Connectors) last year, and from our perspective, they have been an overwhelming success.

Lighting Upgrades

Before and after pictures of the Price Science Commons. It was dim and dark prior to a lighting upgrade. Now the artwork pops and the study area is much more inviting. Thank you CPFM Carpenters and Electricians!

Fish Shock

The Office of Sustainability is helping to restore the property along the Millrace. Part of this effort included a fish count, to survey fish populations where the Millrace meets the Willamette River. The project was featured in Around the O.

"The natural area includes a 200-foot setback from the river for nearly a mile, totaling 24 acres, set aside for its riparian natural values and for recreation and education purposes", said Steve Mital, sustainability director in the Office of Sustainability, part of Campus Planning and Facilities Management.

“We don’t have anything like this, any part of our landscape set aside in this kind of way,” Mital said. A consultant is working with the UO to develop the landscape management plan to help restore the land within the setback to its “pre-settlement condition,” he said."

Sustainability Open House

Center for Science Communication Research (SCR)

- Environmental Communication
- Health Communication
- Judgment and Decision making
- Science and Technology
- Creative Inquiry

On Friday, April 30th, the Office of Sustainability hosted the Spring 2022 Sustainability Open House, in person for the first time since the COVID-19 pandemic began. Speakers included Cimmeron Gillespie from the Office of Sustainability, Hollie Smith from the School of Journalism and Communications, Patrick McMurdo from GEO Study Abroad, Ashia Ajani from English, and the PNW Just Futures Institute, and Michael Geffel from the School of Architecture and Environment. To join the mailing list for future open houses, email Sarah Stoeckl, sstoeckl@uoregon.edu.

Kudos Korner

"Big thank you to everyone involved in cleaning the floor in Suite 110. (Striping of the floor performed by Dayshift Custodial Coordinator Johnny Earl, while waxing of the floor was performed by August Sherman, training by Alex Smith). Those floors were really dirty and I had no idea that you would be able to get them so clean! The floor looks really good now and it is great that the new occupants will have such clean floors when they move in. Great job!"

- Justin Grishkin

"Please thank Quinton Cole, Pete Enfield, Jeff Ziglinski (and the Zero Waste students), Bret Jensen and Morgan Driggs, and Jude Hess for their lightning-quick response and wonderful customer service to help me get everything ready for the Huestis folks to move in. I really appreciate it!!!! And thanks to Colin Brennan too for providing me the work order numbers so quickly."

- Dave Musgrove

Kudos to Jude Hess (Floor crew) for work performed in HEDCO, "They look awesome. I can shave in the reflection😊 As always, thanks for taking care of us."

- Eric Owens

"The project (Oregon Hall Whiteboards Installation, TV Relocations & Building Shelves) went great, and Ashley Mayfield is amazing! She was so helpful, and I enjoyed working with her and Bob Lyman."

- Christie Ferris

"Thanks again for your help with the whiteboard. Ashley Mayfield did a great job!!"

- Dave Musgrove

"LeAnna - thank you for the inclusive and supportive atmosphere you create."
