Experience Real “Fire & Ice” with Iceland ProTravel

As Fagradalsfjall volcano in Iceland’s Geldingadalir Valley continues to spew molten lava, Iceland ProTravel continues to offer its new “Volcano Adventure — Real Fire & Ice” daytrip from Reykjavik.

Dormant for an estimated 6,000 years, the volcano in southwest Iceland suddenly erupted in March of this year. The geological event has totally transformed the valley’s landscape and topography.

And the change continues daily, as new rivers of lava gush from open vents and craters.

As a result, the Volcano Adventure also changes daily to match current road, terrain and safety conditions. Over the past few weeks, the lava flow has threatened the main access road, making it more difficult to get close to the craters.
