A NOTE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Dear LSU Families,

As we begin the new year, I want to express my gratitude to the entire LSU community for our collective resilience and determination in the face of unprecedented challenges this year. The safety and well-being of our students, faculty, staff, and alumni continues to be our top priority.

Looking back on the past year, we can see how the coronavirus pandemic has tested us all. Yet, throughout the year, we have witnessed incredible acts of kindness, creativity, and collaboration that have sustained our community and helped us to adapt to the new realities.

Our students have shown remarkable tenacity and resilience, balancing academic work with the challenges of remote learning and life during a pandemic. Our faculty and staff have worked tirelessly to ensure that our students continue to learn and grow, even as we have faced unforeseen obstacles.

In the fall semester, we were able to provide our students with the educational experience they deserve. Throughout the semester, we have prioritized the health and safety of our community, and we are grateful for the patience and cooperation of our students, faculty, staff, and alumni.

This past fall, we welcomed nearly 2,000 new students to LSU, and we were thrilled to see them safely and successfully transition to college life with so much to look forward to. We are proud that more than 99% of the students who registered for classes completed their registrations, and we are excited to welcome them back in the spring.

Many of our students have faced challenges and hardships that have impacted their ability to return to campus. Our Student Support Services team remains available to assist students with any academic or support needs they may have.

As we look ahead to the spring semester, we continue to be guided by the health and safety of our community. We are committed to providing a safe and healthy environment for our students, faculty, staff, and visitors.

In conclusion, let us take a moment to remember all the ways that we have supported each other this past year. As we begin the new year, let us continue to support one another and work together to create a brighter future for ourselves and for our university.

Sincerely,

Soichiro Nagaoka
