THOUGHTS FROM THE DIRECTOR

Jim Jarva

This time around, we would like to highlight three of our recent research endeavors that have been particularly impactful.

Firstly, we are proud to announce the CINA Research Student Awarded Fellowship to Support Research in Disrupting Human Trafficking Networks. This initiative aims to bring together emerging scientists and experienced practitioners to investigate the complex dynamics of human trafficking.

Secondly, the CINA Network is excited to share the upcoming DISTINGUISHED SPEAKER SERIES, a platform for thought leaders and experts to contribute to our understanding of human trafficking and related issues.

Lastly, we are pleased to offer an upcoming CINA Distinguished Speaker Series - Spring 2021, featuring distinguished speakers from various fields to discuss the latest research and developments in the field of human trafficking.

Stay tuned for more updates from the CINA team.

CINA Research Student Awarded Fellowship

To Support Research in Disrupting Human Trafficking Networks

The Center for Innovation in National Affairs (CINA) is pleased to announce the CINA Research Student Awarded Fellowship. This initiative aims to support emerging scientists and experienced practitioners in their research efforts to disrupt human trafficking networks. The fellowship provides a stipend and the opportunity to engage with CINA's research community.

CINA Welcomes 2020-21 Open OPP White Paper Subcommittee

We are excited to welcome the 2020-21 Open OPP White Paper Subcommittee. This group will be working on developing white papers in support of the CINA mission and the goals of the Department of Homeland Security.
