Reclaiming the Ancestors: Indigenous and Black Perspectives on Repatriation, Human Rights, and Justice
September 2, 2020 at 4:00 PM EDT
Register below for this online event
Today, more than 100,000 Native American ancestral remains are still held in U.S. public museums alone, while an unknown number of remains of people of African descent are stored in museum collections. What does it mean to turn human beings into artifacts? What happens to the living communities who lose control and ownership over their own ancestors and heritage? In exploring these questions, this panel will discuss how repatriation—the process of reclaiming and returning ancestral and human remains—can address inequality.

Massachusetts Archaeological Society
Monthly Meetings Update
The chapter is looking at alternative means of remotely delivering its Tuesday evening Fall program to you. We have speakers lined up for our program from September through November. Once we can establish a delivery system (e.g. Zoom).

On the Cover
Fishing with Reinaldo Sun, Stephanie Cormier, Jennifer Villanueva, and Outdoor Pursuits, Lindsay Randall took students to the shipwreck of the Ada K. Damon— a Grand Banks schooner (built in 1875, Essex, MA) used for fishing and later for sand transportation. The schooner was wrecked on December 26, 1909 in what became known as the "Great Christmas Snowstorm." The schooner's anchor chain parted, setting the Ada K. Damon adrift where it later ran aground on Crane Beach in Ipswich, MA. Students had the opportunity to learn more about maritime archaeology using this accessible site.

What have you been up to this month? The Peabody Institute has been developing updated virtual lessons, establishing a new award for archaeology education, and collaborating to support multicultural speakers on repatriation. And, staff continues to return to the building to make progress on the collections inventory. We are proud of our accomplishments and love sharing them with you!
