On the Cover
Working together, Stephanie Cormier, Jennifer Villanueva, and Carex Buntin led students in the annual ‘Grand Banks Campaign’ at the Grand Banks Schooner, an interactive day off the coast of Nova Scotia. covariance, a beautiful ship from the 1800s, will be featured in the upcoming exhibit in the Peabody’s new ‘Grand Banks’ section. ‘The students take on the role of ship’s captain during the day off-shore, allowing them to experience the ship’s history and get hands-on experience with maritime archaeology.’

Reclaiming the Ancestors: Indigenous and Black Perspectives on Repatriation, Human Rights, and Justice
September 2, 2020 at 4:00 PM EDT
Register below for this online event
Today, more than 100,000 Native American ancestral remains are still held in U.S. public museums alone, while an unknown number of remains of people of African descent are stored in museum collections. What does it mean to turn human beings into artifacts? What happens to the living communities who lose control and ownership over their own ancestors and heritage? In exploring these questions, this panel will discuss how repatriation—the process of reclaiming and returning ancestral and human remains—can address inequality.
