Announcements

A valuable feature with expanding procurement systems is your site code, APV, in relation to financial charges within Concur. This is especially true when you exchange采购 may have been incorrectly accounted for, leading to incorrect reports for financial charges. This is because the site code is used to identify the correct financial code associated with your charges. It is important to know your site code to ensure that your financial charges are properly accounted for.

On June 27, 2021, the Financial Vice President sent an email to all financial department administrators to notify them of this issue and to ask them to check the accuracy of their financial charges.

To ensure that your charges are properly accounted for, please review your financial charges and make any necessary adjustments. If you have any questions, please contact your financial department administrator.

Note that this issue may also affect financial charges in other systems, such as Oracle Financials Cloud and Concur Travel & Expense. We encourage you to check these systems as well.

We appreciate your cooperation and look forward to hearing from you.

Best regards,
