Zisla legacy shines on through website

In the past, it was a brochure. Now, every artist needs a website. To create one for Harold Zisla '50, his daughter, Beverly Zisla Welber, wanted the outcome to reveal her father's personality as well as his art. "Although every artist is unique, yielding a website with content that no one else's has, I was looking for a way to capture what made him so unusual," she said.

"Me and My Zisla" became the means to do so.
