GWupstart PSGC Grant Mentoring Session

GWupstart is dedicated to supporting the ideas of GW students to deliver solutions to problems in the community. Each PSGC Grant can support up to 2 students. The Research and Action Workshop is a chance for students to learn about the PSGC Grant in more detail and connect with advisers before submitting their applications.

Upcoming Dates in GWUpstart

GWupstart brings together a diverse group of students to work toward a common goal. The program is divided into 4 phases: a Social Innovation Idea Competition, a Research and Action Workshop, a Design Workshop, and a capstone project called our Community-Engaged Design Challenge (CEDC). Community organizations partner with students to contribute to real-world solutions. Students receive mentorship, training, seed funding, and recognition for their work.

GW Elliott School of Public Affairs are proud to announce the launching of their Mentorship Program. Young Black Professionals in International Affairs (YBPIA) is an initiative partnered with the Black Student Union, the Nashman Center, and the GW Sociology Department to study the experiences of the 1.5 million Black students enrolled in higher education in the United States.

YBPIA participants will take part in workshops led by health equity experts and participate in a research team of faculty, students, and community leaders who are working to improve health outcomes for Black people.

Remote COVID Tracking Project

At the Nashman Center, the COVID Tracking Project maintains a database of COVID-19 test, vaccination, and contact tracing data that is accessible to the public. In addition, the project’s team is working on developing a comprehensive dataset that will include statistics on ethnicity and long-term care facility data. This project is the Nashman Center’s social innovation fund.

GWupstart is an overview on education and small working groups. The project includes mentoring sessions that will focus on designing creative solutions to the challenges of distance learning.
